My why for being in education:

My why, I want every child who walks into my classroom to feel safe, loved and valued each day. I believe children learn best when they know they belong and feel accepted just as they are. My hope is that every student feels welcomed, encouraged, and confident enough to try new things, ask questions, and celebrate both their successes and their mistakes. As I begin my first year teaching kindergarten, I am excited to help my students grow academically, socially, and emotionally.
