

ORWELL VILLAGE SCHOOL

October NEWSLETTER

October is wrapping up, but the fun and learning are just getting started as we head into November! Our students have been busy with some amazing activities: showing off their focus and creativity with 3D pens in the Library, enjoying collaborative, student-run crafts in fifth grade, and getting wonderful support from our 6th-Grade helpers. We are incredibly proud of our students and staff for making this such a strong and dynamic start to the year!

3D PENS BRING LIBRARY CREATIVITY TO LIFE!

Last week, our students were busy mastering the 3D pen! This fun, futuristic tool allows users to literally draw three-dimensional objects, turning imagination into tangible creations.

From tiny sculptures to custom bookmarks, the results were amazing and showcased incredible focus and creativity. It was a fantastic way to blend art, tech, and problem-solving. Look for more fun, hands-on activities coming up soon!

6th Grade Helpers!!

A dedicated 6th grader is generously volunteering time with our youngest students! He has become a beloved mentor in the kindergarten classroom, where he brightens the day by reading aloud and lending support wherever needed.

Lunch In the Library!!

Due to our ongoing cafeteria construction, we've transformed the library into our temporary lunch spot—and we're loving it! We're not just eating; we're entertaining! Teachers are taking advantage of the space to read books aloud, and students are putting on delightful, impromptu skits. It's a great demonstration of school spirit and creativity as we make the best of our new lunch arrangements!

5th Grade Student Run Crafts- Crocheting

We were thrilled to see a volunteer passionately share her skills, introducing others to the foundational steps of crocheting. They expertly guided peers through everything from the basic chain to creating finished shapes. This session beautifully demonstrated how confidence and skill-sharing enrich our community, reminding us that every student possesses unique, valuable talents that can inspire and teach others!

5th Grade Student Run Crafts- Felting

A talented 5th grader shared the textural craft of needle felting, showing others how to use special needles to compress wool into colorful, solid shapes. This impressive guidance turned fluff into fuzzy animals and objects. It's truly inspiring to see students step up as community experts to share their passion!

The last week of October was an exciting celebration of reading and writing with our annual Literacy Week! The entire school engaged in activities designed to celebrate the power of words. The main event? The whole school collaborated on writing one giant story! This fantastic display of teamwork and imagination proves that every student's voice contributes to our collective tale.
