Community In Acts

October 5, 2026

Luke15:1-2 “Now the tax collectors and “sinners” were all gathering around to hear him. 2 But the Pharisees and the teachers of the law muttered, “This man welcomes sinners and eats with them.”

Every time you leave your house you will be judged. That’s just a fact of life. Jesus himself was judged harshly by the religious elite onlookers. The two groups mentioned in verse one would be considered the reprobates of today’s society. The accusation/judgment from the religious elite stated that not not only did Jesus welcome the reprobates he also ate with them. The Jews were extremely proud of the dietary restrictions and to accuse one of their own of this violation was an egregious offense. However, I find it rather comforting to know that our Lord and Savior went out of His way to welcome sinners. Risking the fact that He Himself would be judged for this grievous welcoming act. We too, should also welcome sinners, eat with them, spent time with them and share with them eternal truths.

Classes

I am thoroughly enjoying teaching theology once again. It has been awhile since I taught theology proper, bibliology and soteriology. Those are the sections of theology I will be touching on this week. The academic level of our students would be more high-school than college. I had to make some last minute changes after my first week of teaching. Our students are taking their studies very seriously and I am impressed with how much they are learning. So far, they have had exposure to three different teachers and next week they will be introduced to a fourth teacher.

Solar

We now have all of the panels installed, all of the inverters installed, and all of the batteries are on site. However, the crew did not bring with them the necessary cables to give us electricity. They are coming back this week to make the final connections. Yesterday, after a nasty storm we were without electricity all day long. We did not get electricity until a little after 9:00 pm. The need for the solar power is great and we are more than ready to benefit from this hefty investment.

Prayer Requests:

1. Please pray for a significant time teaching divine truths to our students.
2. Please pray for some significant family issues related to our students.
3. Please pray for us to have solar power this week.
4. Please pray that we can finish the building with the finances that we have.
