7 Mindset lesson this week

(Passion First) ... Make a Stand -

It is very important that you play to your strengths and interests whenever possible. It is equally important that what you do is important to you and your life. What you do must matter to you. It must be of great importance to you in the moment, because no matter what dream you choose, there will be challenges and you will have to do things you are not necessarily good at or enjoy. You must understand what your core values are. You will always be your strongest when you are acting from your values. You will act with your greatest power and you will overcome all obstacles and challenges.
