Dear Special Education Families,

As part of our continuous effort to enhance our programs and support students with disabilities, we want to ensure that you have a strong voice in our community. To help foster parent/guardian participation, we are hosting an informational virtual meeting to discuss the Special Education Parent Advisory Council (SEPAC) and the vital role that parents play in this organization.

Whether you are already familiar with SEPAC or are brand new to the special education process, we would love for you to join us. This meeting is particularly geared toward families who are looking to actively support their children and explore taking on a specific role to collaborate and champion our students' special education needs.

During this session, we will explain exactly what SEPAC is, discuss how you can get involved, and answer any questions you may have. Your insight, partnership, and engagement are incredibly important to us and to the success of our students.
