Summit 4th and 5th grade students participated in the STARBASE education program sponsored by the U.S. Department of Defense during the week of September 14th. Students spent the week doing activities that focused on science, technology, engineering, and math (STEM). The culmination of this week was on September 22nd when the classes went to Sioux Falls to the National AirGuard Base. According to Mrs. Minder, "Students were able to get up close and personal with an F16. They then met a pilot who explained the training involved to become a pilot and what it is like to fly an F16."

The students then learned about the equipment that pilots use on any flight and the emergency equipment each pilot has incase of an emergency. Then the STARBASE crew treated the staff and kids to "nice cream.' They used liquid nitrogren to cool down the ice cream mixture quickly to make homemade ice cream. Attaboy Performs and Informs

By: Junior Blackthunder Cooper

On Tuesday, September 15th , our school had a special performance from the Attaboy band. A lot of students were there from three schools and excited because it was something different from our school day. Instead of sitting in class all day , we got the chance to listen to live music and watch the band perform. The performance brought a lot of energy to the schools and gave students something fun to look forward to.

When Attaboy came out, many students started cheering and clapping. The band played several songs and kept the crowd entertained throughout the performance. The music was loud and exciting, and students were paying attention to what was happening on stage. Some students were singing along. While others were clapping to the beat. It was cool seeing so many people enjoying the same event together.

Overall, the Attaboy performance was a fun and exciting event for our schools. The music, energy. And interaction with the students made the performance enjoyable. As a student, I thought it was nice to have something different happen during the school day. Hopefully, our school will continue bringing in events like this so students can have more experiences like this in the future.
