Resilience Rally

By Austen Alsop

The Resilience Rally was started because of two kids who were suicidal in the Dalles and Hood River. This is meant for all kids in high school so they can connect with people and have fun.

As the high schoolers went into the gym they were confused and wondered what this "assembly was". Colton Holliday said, "What do I do in here? Oh they have free stuff, this is great".

Jacob Lanthorn said, "What is this? I am going to save the bouncy house for last". Every high schooler interviewed was having a good time and a great mental break at this Resilience Rally. There were sixteen booths set up for this Resilience Rally, each booth was people from around our county coming together for the high school students. One of the most popular booths was the Italian soda booth. The drinks that were made at this booth were very good.

With the games and the booths it made the area feel chill. High School students were going to each booth checking them out and seeing what they had to offer. Each stand gave tickets based on if you won or participated at that booth. The tickets were used to put into a raffle for a chance to win prizes.

The Resilience Rally was liked by most of the high school students. Multiple students would love to see the Resilience Rally again.

Cove Tournament

By Haley Blagg

On December 4-6 the varsity boys and girls basketball teams had a tournament. The team captains Addie Smith, Allison Rolfe, and Emersyn Stanfield said that before the game they were just a little bit nervous. They all enjoyed the experience they had at the tournament. They improved throughout the all the games. They played as a team and worked hard.

Addie said, "My favorite part about the tournament was definitely playing basketball."

Allison Rolfe said, "I loved playing basketball as well and spending time as a team."

At the Cove/Union Tournament, the Sherman county girls high school basketball team played Elkton, Prairie City, and Union. Unfortunately, they lost against Prairie City and Union. They ended the tournament with a win against Elkton. The girls learned how to play as a team. To be calm and patient with each other.

Door Decorations

By Robert Williams

Every year, almost every class in the high school during the holiday season will decorate their doors. The halls get very festive during this time of year while everyone is enjoying decorating the halls.

As the doors were being decorated, the senior lounge was also being decorated. Those decorations consist of a christmas tree, a fireplace, and a wall full of each of the senior's stockings. Everyone was giving the lounge looks like they have never seen something like that before. The lounge is now being used for holiday pictures, Which everyone is enjoying.

The doors were very festive this year, and were a treat to be seen in the halls. They were ranked from first to last. The top doors in the high school were the 10th grade who was 1st place, the 11th grade who was 2nd, then the 3rd place class was the 9th graders. A 9th grader, Ashley Galvan, said building the door was "Very last minute and stressful". The middle school also had their doors graded first through third.

The first place class was the 6th graders, the second place class was the 8th graders, the 3rd place class was the 7th graders.

Plenty of students agree that the door decorating is a great tradition.

This picture shows the first place door of the middle school. The class that made this was the 6th graders.

4th Grade Thanksgiving Celebration

By Jayden Mondragon

This year, the fourth-grade students celebrated the start of Thanksgiving break by eating sandwiches, cookies, and other snack foods.

After the fourth graders finished their snacks, they played Pin the Feathers on the Turkey. Pin the Feathers on the Turkey is played by putting on a blindfold, spinning around, and walking up to a turkey on the wall. Kids then attempted to tape their feathers in the correct spot, some missing completely, and others taping them almost perfectly.

Pictured here are the fourth graders playing Pin the Feathers on the Turkey on 11/26/2025, during their Thanksgiving celebration! Mrs. Wambold and Ms. Atchley are coaching Hunter Beal to put the feather on the turkey while Addilyn Eiesland and Willow Woods watch.

Kids were laughing and placing feathers all over the classroom. When the kids were asked how they felt about playing the game, some responded that they were nervous to play, and most reported feeling a bit dizzy afterwards.

Kyle Kock said he was "excited to go up there and was dizzy". William Liddell said he was "a little scared to go up there." Wyatt Bailey was "a little nervous and was really excited." "Hunter Beal was scared and nervous and dizzy". After their celebration, the fourth graders resumed to their schoolwork until class was dismissed for Thanksgiving break.

OSU Field Trip

Marlie (MJ) Johnston

The sound of the alarm clock goes off, the group had an early start in the morning for the Oregon State University field trip. Everyone piled into the bus, and off they went for the four-hour long bus ride. When they got there, they were greeted by the tour guides, who, luckily, had microphones, so all the students could hear.

The Senior Class Advisor Tyler Kido who chaperoned the trip along with Montana Walters, stated that the tour was “not great but was a great experience, the campus was beautiful, and the trip allowed [the students] to see what a large school like Oregon State has to offer.”

The above photo shows all of the students who went on the OSU trip in front of the OSU football field and track stadium built in 1953, featuring various sophomores, juniors and seniors after the field trip about to board the bus holding their treats and souvenirs

This photo shows an image of one of the many historic buildings at OSU, built originally when the school was founded in 1868, along with their modern delivery robot on the ground helping the students get their food.

The trip continued, touring all of the major buildings and showing some of the rooms. Montana Walters, our school counselor, said that “it was a good opportunity for the kids to get out of Sherman County and see different opportunities and what is out there after high school”. Many students agree with this sentiment.

After the tour, the group ate lunch in downtown Corvallis. They split up to go explore, with Alayna Scott saying their all you can eat sushi place was “Litty as flip”, or really good. The students met back at the designated spot, and walked back to the arena area to get the picture listed above.

Everyone piled back into their seats and set back off for the school. Tired bodies and sleepy eyes, everyone had a blast and thoroughly enjoyed the trip, a lot of the students leaving with souvenirs to show friends and family such as pictures, pamphlets, or even clothes. Many students enjoyed this trip and look forward to future college field trips!
