White Mountains Regional Middle High School
Leaders and Learners, September

Beginning with Climate & Culture

There is much to celebrate as the newly minted White Mountains Regional Middle High School begins the year. One of the school's goals is to be intentional about creating a positive, welcoming school climate and culture. At WMRMHS, climate and culture work is viewed as part of the academic work. The relationships being built, traditions being created, sense of belonging being established, and school spirit being cultivated are not things that get in the way of learning, they are part of the foundation that allows learning to happen well.

The opening weeks have put that belief into action. The school welcomed 7th and 8th graders to the building, introduced freshmen to the high school experience, celebrated Homecoming Week, gathered for Senior Sunrise, honored 9/11, held a surprise staff flash mob, cheered on fall athletes, showcased student talent through musical auditions for the fall play, and came together as a school community at the North Country Career Expo.

Just as importantly, students are beginning to find their voices and their place in this new school community. Grade-level leaders have stepped up, students are getting involved in athletics, clubs and activities, and the newly formed Principal's Advisory Council will provide students in grades 7–12 with a regular opportunity to share their perspectives and help shape WMRMHS.

There is still much work ahead, but students and staff are showing up, getting involved, finding their place, and beginning to make WMRMHS their own.

We're All In This Together.
