New Staff Member: Mrs. Egan

By Staff Reporter: Emma Carter

This week's new staff is Jill Egan. Mrs. Egan works as a paraprofessional here at Canistota. Her dream job would be helping children, while still being able to help her family or friends when they need it.

Some of her hobbies include reading, baking goods, crafting, and spending time with her family. She also enjoys traveling around the world and attending many different concerts.

Mrs. Egan is married to her husband Ken, and has one daughter and son, Jocelyn and Jonah. Her and her family live on acreage near Bridgewater.

HS Student Of The Month: Jadzia Pierson

By Staff Editor: Malachi Weber

Congratulations Jadzia Pierson, also known as Zia, for winning student of the month, and showing extreme diligence, leadership and kindness over all of CHS!

Jadzia is a hard working senior student who loves to hang out with their friends, read, bake, and enjoy nature around them. She lives with her mom, dad, and two older sisters. Her favorite class in school is physics, and favorite teacher is Mr. Decker. There's only two other students in the class, making it a fun, small class.

memories of school are from all the way back in freshman year. Her shop teacher, Mr. Satter, was reaching for a cord and fell out of his chair. "It seemed like he was falling in slow motion!"

Her dream job is to be an owner of an upper class restaurant with live jazz, since she loves to cook and the atmosphere of high class restaurants is very calming and elegant.

Jersey swap Mondays

By Staff Editor: Malachi Weber

Many students and staff in Canistota are avid sports watchers, specifically professional football. This leads to a lot of debates on whose team is better, which is common everywhere in life.

Some teachers and students will hold friendly wagers when their teams play each other, the most common punishment for a loss being one person having to wear the other team's jersey on the following Monday.

Mr. Alex Decker is often on one side of these wagers, being a proud Chicago Bears fan, he enjoys making the bets with his students and fellow staff, even though most of the time he ends up in a different jersey.

Friendly wagers like this are such a fun way for students and teachers to connect with one another, giving them the opportunity to joke and discuss something they both are fans of. I for one hope that Mr. Decker keeps this tradition going long after I graduate.

Junior and senior Kindness Day

By Staff Editor: Malachi Weber

On Tuesday juniors and seniors in Mrs. K's class partook in a kindness day. This gave them the opportunity to help out around the school, whether with the staff or with the elementary students.

Some senior boys helped heath out with repairing the mower, and other students put up the Christmas trees for the commons.

Students who helped with the elementary students were greatly appreciated by the elementary teachers. Some activities included reading to the fourth graders, helping the fifth graders with their activities, and going out to recess with the Kindergarten and Pre-school students.
