School Life . . .

the key to discovering pleasant variations of everyday happenings

Soon after the sophomores received their class sweaters, halls and classrooms became splashed with a bright royal blue.

Mike Coleman, Marna Diffendarfer, Darrell Patton, and Suzanne Hults modeled caps and gowns for the seniors' final day of victory. Their classmates chose from black and white, white and royal blue, and royal blue and light blue.

Traditions and fads mix to brighten

CHS is a typical high school full of typical teens, yet their lives are brimming with happenings that somehow seem a bit more lively than the everyday routine.

Fads come and go as fads will do, but they never fail to add spice to the year. Pep sessions enable students to get out of that last hour class, which seems so-o-o long. The "Them There Five" really livened up the sessions. Even the teachers got into the act when they were represented by the "Faculty Five."

Times change, kids come and go. In later years the present CHS teens will look back on their high school days with fond memories and maybe get a little nostalgic. All the things they do now will form the key to success which they will need in the future.

One of the highlights of the junior year is the acquiring of the class ring. Can you guess which ring belongs to whom?

The collecting of charms was an important part of the teen-age girl's social life at CHS.

Ben Franklin entered the modern world of CHS via his glasses worn by Valerie Pressler, Ginger DeCamp, and Karen Rapp.

the daily routine of school life

The senior fellows came to school all dressed up in their fathers' old wide ties.

Senior cords have become a tradition at CHS.

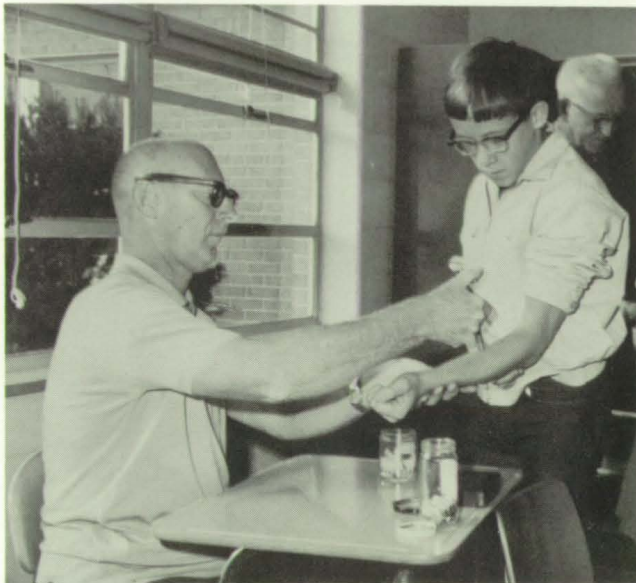

What's this, a riot? No, it's Eagle fans yelling their spirit through the town before the Hometown game.

Shots, shouts, and shopping at CHS

"Them There Five" led many cheers for the Eagles at pep sessions. The Cheerleaders were Chuck Mathieu, Steve Loe, Doug Sheets, Reynard Herron, Steve Tulley.

Dennis Clouse grits his teeth while Dr. Heriter gives him his tuberculin test.

The Junior Store was swamped during the halves of the home ballgames.

Girls' and Boys' State delegates—Rosemary Gilliom, Jessica Knight, Randy Aumsbaugh, Douglas Sheets, Cheryl Dafforn, Nancy McDaniel.

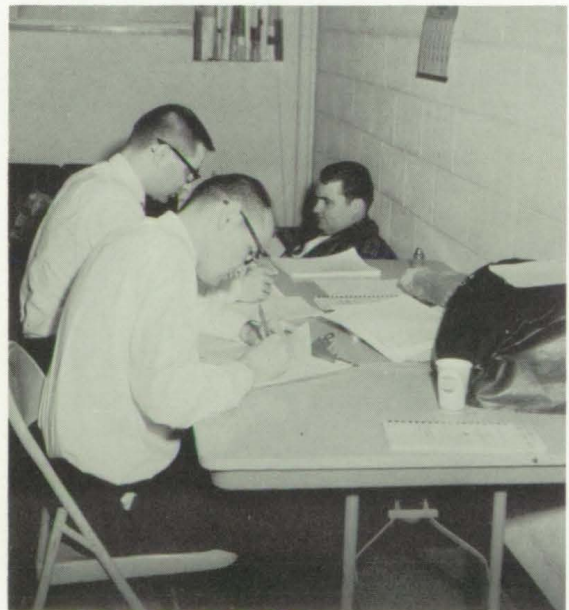

Girls' and Boys' State alternates—Marcia Richey, Brenda Gordon, Chuck Mathieu, Crystal Buschman, Steve Tulley, Peggy Butler.

Each summer four girls and two boys from the Junior class spend a week of their summer vacation on the Indiana University campus at Bloomington. These Girls' and Boys' State delegates study the function and structure of Indiana's state government, and at the same time meet new friends and share memorable experiences.

CHS's delegates, along with 927 others, are divided into two political parties, the Nationalists and the Federalists. From there, each delegate campaigned for himself and for others in his party for local, county, and state offices.

After an enjoyable and profitable week, delegates returned home with a better appreciation for and understanding of the government.

Juniors present drama, "You, the Jury"

It's a woman's world as Edith Scott defends her sister, Barbara Scott, while their younger sister, Janet, and the lady warden look on. Portraying the roles are Vickie McNeal, Nancy Renkenberger, Donna McCoy, and Peggy Patton.

"You, the Jury" was presented by the Junior Class after numerous hours of preparation. Under the direction of Mr. Harold Norman, the cast members discovered the secrets behind the production of a play. The other members of the class did their share by distributing tickets, ushering, and transforming the high school gym into an auditorium for the performance.

The testimony swings the verdict back and forth as the prosecuting attorney, Allen Woodward, questions the murdered man's housekeeper, Miss Kelton. The scene includes the cast members Charlene Woll and Dave McEowen.

Seniors give successful performance

Before every dress rehearsal, one would find the entire play cast in the home economics room applying make-up.

The lights dimmed, the crowd became silent, the curtain opened, and the senior class play, You Can't Take It With You, began its run.

The large cast of twenty-two was directed by Mr. Harold Norman and under his guidance the cast was able to give a successful and memorable performance.

The comedy, a Pulitzer prize winner, depicted a family that enjoyed life to its fullest. The play was a satire on the people of society who only think of their material belongings, instead of happiness and enjoyment of living.

"I never drink when I'm acting...until intermission," says Joyce Gaff, who played the role of a drunken actress.

Prom Queen and Court

Couples glide across the floor, enchanted with the music and atmosphere.

The 1966 Junior-Senior Prom

The 1966 Junior-Senior Prom was completely new and different in many respects. The prom was held in the gymnasium for the first time.

A false ceiling of sky blue crepe paper was erected. The streamers all came together in the middle like a circus tent, and a mobile of tropical fruits, fish, and fish net was hung from there.

Each wall was decorated differently. One had a beach and ocean scene, one was bamboo covered, one was covered with fish net and leis, and the fourth wall had streamers and "Welcome to Hawaii, Isle of Paradise" written on it. There was a bamboo shack for the dance band and a volcano-waterfall combination added to the theme.

To add the finishing touch there were palm trees and multi-colored spotlights. The only other lights were candles on each table.

The band, The Shadows, from Indiana Tech, Fort Wayne, kept the students dancing until 11:15; with intermissions for crowning of the queen, reading of the prophecy and will, and entertainment.

Ira Smith, announcer from radio station WHLT, Columbia City, was the master of ceremonies and the entertainment.

The Cleftones gave a twenty minute program after the dance and then one of the relatively new musicals, "Bye, Bye, Birdie," was shown. After the movie breakfast was served by some of the juniors' mothers in the cafeteria.

The prom will long be remembered because of all the work that was put into it, and also all the pleasure that was received from it.

The addition of blue food coloring completed the work on the volcano and waterfall. Juniors are caught in the act of preparing for the big night.

Upon arriving at "Isle of Paradise," guests were presented with Hawaiian leis. Cheryl Kistler and Carol Young choose theirs from many colors.

Hawaiian beauties Cathy Gillium, Janet Barth, and Bonnie Gaff were in charge of serving refreshments.

Approximately 125 people attended the breakfast, which was served at 2:30 in the morning.

At 5:45 in the morning seventy-four seniors gathered at Baer Field Airport to board the plane for New York City.

Caps, gowns, and diplomas mark the High school days became a memory as the class of 1966 filed by to receive their diplomas.

Seventy-six seniors led a busy, bustling life this year. Senior days were filled with preparation for pictures, class meetings, choosing flowers and mottos, two fish fries, choosing announcements, senior trip, measuring for caps and gowns, senior picnic, and preparations for baccalaureate and commencement.

Seniors flew to New York and spent two days touring, observing, and shopping. By bus they traveled to Washington and spent the last two days seeing the sites of the beautiful city and buying souvenirs. They returned home, exhausted after the four-day excursion and educated by their experiences.

Almost before they knew it, seniors found themselves at commencement, wearing blue and white gowns, forming the friendship circle, and waiting to begin their adult lives and fulfill their class motto—"Not merely to exist, but to amount to something in life."

Each will travel a different path, both in thought and future. Each holds individual dreams, hopes, and dreads; but throughout their lives, each will perk up at the glimpse of black and gold and will stop in the midst of conversation at the mention of Churubusco High School, Class of 1966.

Seniors relax after being airborne for a while. This was the first experience of flying for many.

The Churubusco High School Concert and Marching Band, under the direction of Mr. Harold Long, had 65 members this year.

During football season it performed maneuvers on the field. A couple of mornings the band members came off the field with wet feet. Somebody forgot to turn off the sprinkling system, which, in turn, left puddles of water hidden by the grass on the field.

It played on the stage and gave floor shows during the basketball season. One was a Christmas show in which the twirlers wore antlers to disguise them as deer. They pulled Santa around the gymnasium to the tune of "Jolly Old Saint Nicholas."

Other events during the year included concerts and contests. Two clarinetists from the band, Becki Avery and Vickie McNeal, were chosen to perform in the "All-Star" High School Band at Purdue.

Fifty per cent of the instrumentalists who attended the NISBOVA (Northern Indiana School Band, Orchestra, and Vocal Association) contest at Fort Wayne, got superior (first) ratings. A clarinet quartet consisting of Becky Avery, Annie Gaff, Kay Diffendarfer, and Vickie McNeal received a first in Group I. This entitled them to attend the State Solo and Ensemble contest at Indianapolis. There they again scored a superior rating.

During the summer the band practiced often and marched in parades and contests.

The pep band, which played for pep sessions, usually had quite a few members. This was because they could get out of class earlier for the pep sessions!

It was cold the night of the bonfire. Mike Adams must not have listened to the weather report before he decided to play in the pep band.

CHS hears the "Wonder of Christmas"

Every Tuesday and Thursday's activity period would find sixty musical voices hard at work in the band room preparing for coming programs and contests. Under the direction of Mr. Harold Long, the chorus practiced long hours for Sunday afternoon concerts and the March district contest. The yuletide season at CHS was brightened during the Christmas assembly by the presentation of the cantata, "The Wonder of Christmas."

The Cleftones is CHS's junior group. During the year the members made many appearances at school functions and local organizations. A television appearance was also made. The eight juniors were under the direction of Mrs. Carol Ressler.

Students receive recognition in NHS

"Hold high the torch" filled the air as eight juniors and two seniors were installed into the Churubusco High School chapter of the National Honor Society, which is only three years old. Students are chosen for membership on the basis of leadership, scholarship, character, and service qualities. A "B" or better average must be maintained, and the faculty must approve the choice.

124 voices harmonize to fill Busco

'Busco's' new mascot, Terry Skiles, could be seen "flying" around in the center circle between games. Terry's Eagle suit was made by Mrs. Snyder and Mrs. Yager.

The largest and loudest cheerblock in the history of CHS has ever known made its debut for the 1965-1966 basketball season. Eighty-two girls and forty-two boys answered the call of the cheerleaders early in the fall and plans and preparations were made to make this year's cheerblock the best yet. Representatives from each class were elected among the girls, and they, along with the captains of the varsity and reserve squads and Mrs. Snyder, made the plans for obtaining new cheerblock vests. The cheerblock chose from six different shades of gold and then purchased their material to make their V-neck vests.

The boys elected Terry Skiles as the first president of CHS's first boys' cheerblock. The boys purchased black hats with gold trim and wore them with white shirts at the games. The boys' novelty yells, competition yells, and sound effect yells combined the 124 voices of the cheerblock for one common purpose—cheering the 'Busco Eagles on to victory.

The 1965-1966 Student Council was the biggest and busiest yet. Membership was increased from twelve to fourteen by electing a representative from each home room plus the presidents from each of the six classes.

Aside from the tradition of decorating a Christmas tree and providing music for the holiday season the Student Council undertook a new project—running the concession stand on CHS's new football field. They also sponsored two dances after the basketball games and were responsible for the selection of assembly programs for the 1966-1967 school year, the collection of money for a ballgame for the WOWO Penny Pitch, and providing records for the dances after the basketball games.

The Student Council made a change in electing its president for the coming years. The new president will be elected in the spring from the junior class by the student body and will attend summer camp at I.U. to obtain useful training in fulfilling the office.

Students prepare for teaching career

One of the new FTA projects unfolds as these girls purchase their tickets for the turkey raffle. Busy with the work at hand are club members Lynn Gross and Marcia Richey.

Old and new projects highlighted the 1965-1966 year of Future Teachers of America. The cake raffles, dances, and the savory banquet carried on the traditional activities. Under Mr. Richey's supervision, new ideas were planned and carried forth. A new project was begun—that of giving a fifty dollar scholarship to the most worthy graduating senior chosen by an appointed committee. The scholarship was given at the climax of the school year on recognition day.

Future Nurses Club makes its debut

A brand new club made its debut at CHS this year. The Future Nurses Club, under the sponsorship of Miss Rathjen, decided early in the fall that its goal was to better acquaint its members with the nursing profession. Under the leadership of the officers, various committees were set up and plans were made to present interesting and informative programs to members; and as a result, membership grew. Around Christmas time members took their holiday spirit to the Whitley County Rest Home, where they passed out gifts and sang Christmas carols.

An outstanding meeting was presented to the club when the director of nurses of the Ball State Hospital gave a talk on and answered questions about the nursing profession.

Sci-Math Club explores modern math

Typical of a Sci-Math club meeting is a micro-projector demonstration given by Bill Shively and Chuck Mathieu on chemical solutions.

The object of the Sci-Math club is to give its members a better understanding of the modern world of science and mathematics. To carry out this object members emphasized regular meetings by giving demonstrations and talks on modern math, the binary number system, the mixing of chemicals, and the history of mathematics. In this way meetings proved to be interesting as well as informative.

YFC changes name to Campus Life

Youth for Christ changed its name this year to Campus Life. This is because Campus Life is trying to keep in step with the fast pace of the teenage world.

There is a lot more that goes into each Tuesday noon meeting of Campus Life than meets the eye. The two teams of officers, one each week, meet after school in the evenings and have Insight meetings to strengthen them spiritually. At this meeting they also plan the next week's Campus Life meeting. They dream up skits, dig up speakers, and plan announcements for the P. A. Under the direction of Steve Sprunger, on the day of the meeting, the teams manage to have very interesting meetings. Because of this the club has grown.

Some say Christians don't have fun. Therefore, to disprove this, Campus Life of Fort Wayne has Singspirations and Rallies to which anyone might go. They have attendance trophies for the groups that bring the most kids and really have a good time.

During GAA initiation for new members, Crystal Buschman enjoys putting Dawn Ayers through much torture.

Under the sponsorship and guidance of Mrs. Snyder, eighty-four members of the Girls' Athletic Association met every Wednesday after school for a planned activity. The activities consisted of bowling, swimming, and playing volleyball. In the spring the members were divided into teams and a four team volleyball tourney took place. Through participation in the various sports, the girls learned good sportsmanship and mental alertness, while having a good time. Thus, the purpose of GAA was accomplished.

Joy Fulk, Jennifer Bolinger, Julie Johnson, Marna Diffendarfer, Charlene Clouse, and Joyce Gaff write copy and prepare stencils for the Tattler.

The Tattler informs CHS student body

The Tattler, CHS's official school paper, is published every month by the members of the office practice class. Under the supervision of Mrs. Shaffer, the staff gathers and produces the class and club news, sports articles, jokes, and principal's comments, which fill the Tattler's pages. One hundred and eighty issues are sold every month. For this reason the staff works diligently, striving to publish each month a newspaper of which Churubusco High School can be proud.

Pam Croxton, Ginny Gaerte, Mary Haber, Nita Gaff, Phyllis Johnson, Mrs. Shaffer, and Jeannie Blackburn run the mimeograph machine which prints the monthly publication.

Pictures and copy are co-ordinated

Waiting until the last minute, Marcia Richey, Jessica Knight, Beverly Linvill and Vickie McNeal work diligently to meet the first deadline.

"Work hard to meet the deadline" was the key phrase behind the 1966 Tusitala staff. Many long hours were spent by Editor Nancy McDaniel and her fifteen staff members in designing layout sheets, writing copy, and typing the compiled material. Frantic attempts were made at the very last minute to make the three deadlines which always seemed to pop up unexpectedly.

Members of the staff made trips to Tri-State and Ball State college to become acquainted with the mechanics of good yearbook editing.

Under the budgeting of Business Manager Lana Fry, the size of the Tusitala was increased sixteen pages—the largest yet.

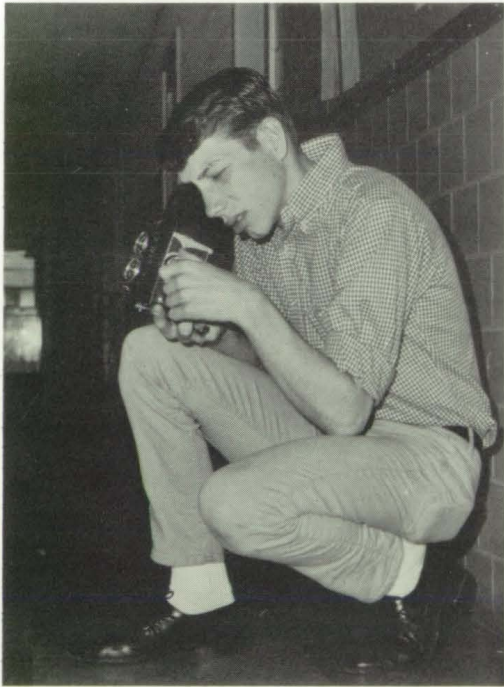

To finance the annual, local and surrounding businesses contributed donations. Due to the co-operation of the staff, school, and community, 250 copies of the 1966 Tusitala were sold.

The People who gave the staff much guidance were Charlene Woll, assistant editor; Nancy McDaniel, editor; and Mr. Nathan Baker, sponsor.

Modern math makes its debut at CHS

Even though students are exposed to math in kindergarten and all thru elementary school, they only scratch the surface of the world of math. Each year of high school math introduces new concepts and methods. Now with modern math, the grade school does a simplified form of high school math. By the time the elementary students reach high school age, they will probably be downing the equivalent of the present day college math! To advance in the world of today and to progress toward the world of tomorrow, this math is not only important, but also essential to everyone.

Chemistry student Dave McEowen prepares a chemical concoction for an experiment.

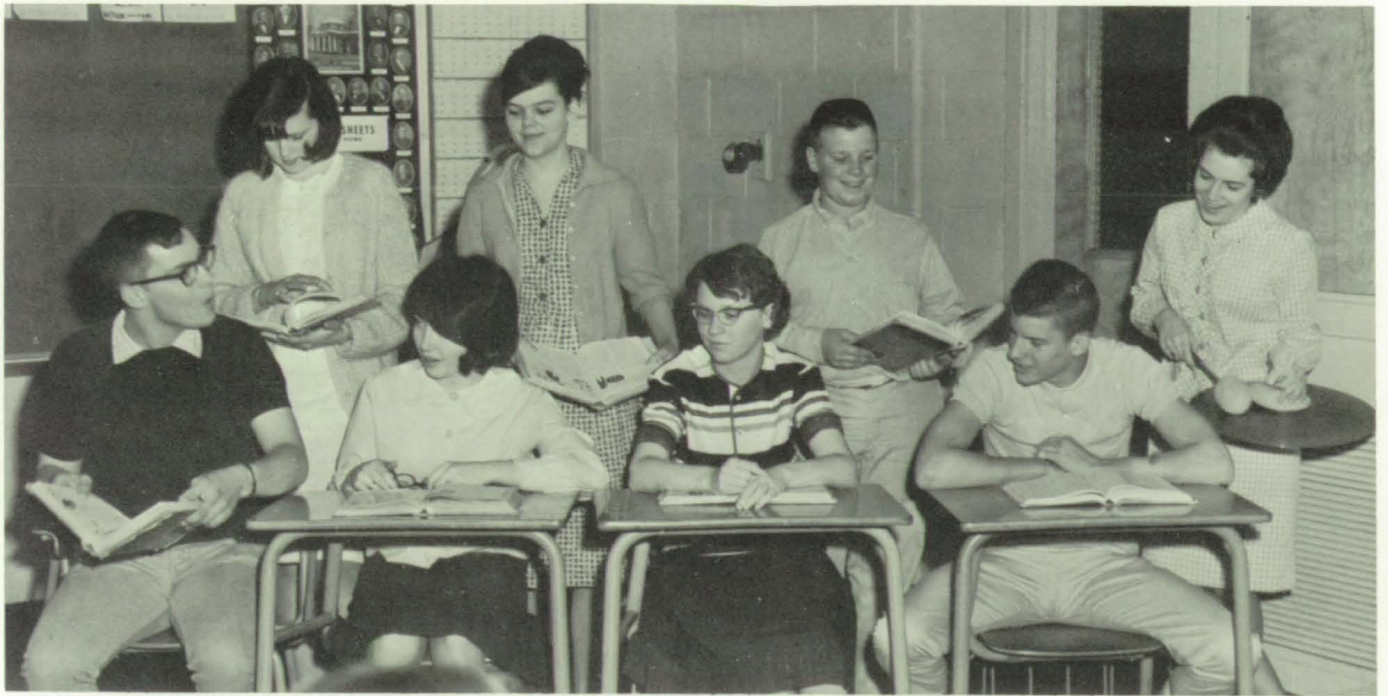

To keep up with the fast moving pace of our modern world, more and more pupils are becoming interested in science. Although nothing of scientific importance has yet been discovered in the laboratories, the basic fundamentals needed to proceed with a broader education are taught there.

For all freshman, biology is a required course, teaching a basic knowledge of living matter. Physical science, a popular sophomore course, introduces students to the basic scientific principles. Chemistry and physics enlarge upon these principles by teaching molecular structure, chemical reactions, energy, and motion, to name just a few topics.

Though they vary in subject matter, the main purpose of the various science courses is to teach students to think both logically and abstractly. Thus, they will be better equipped to face the scientific world of today.

English and Speech encourage self-

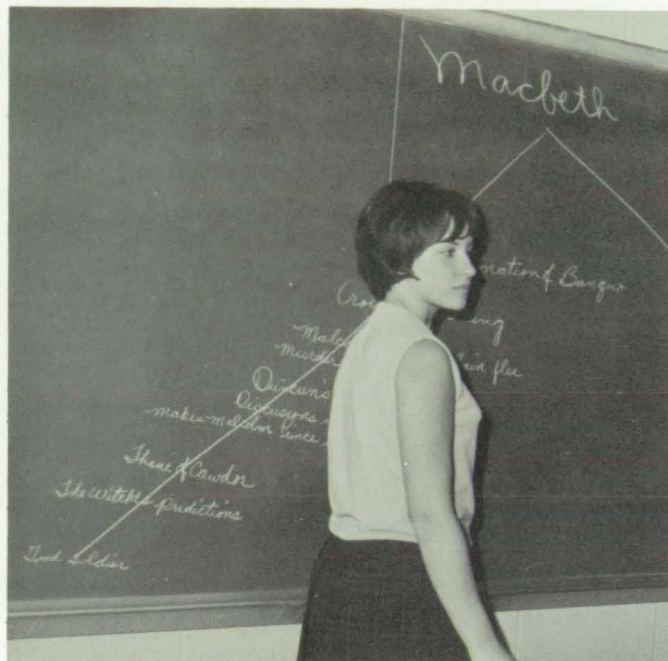

Sophomores Karen Rapp, Mark Hollopeter, Mary Lou Johnson, and Stan Schenher listen to the author's translation of poetry in sophomore literature class.

Every student who expects to graduate from CHS will have acquired a major in English, for English is a required subject for freshmen, sophomores, and juniors. For this course one semester of grammar and one semester of literature are studied by underclassmen. Seniors who are either college bound or just wishing to broaden their knowledge are offered college preparatory English. This course is a study of composition and English literature.

Speech is offered to all high school students. Its purpose is to teach its students to organize their thought and then express themselves rapidly and accurately.

Through writing themes, reporting on books, and accomplishing daily assignments, the CHS student learns to discover and express himself to others, thus preparing himself for the future.

expression, promote understanding

Speech students Kenny Wilson and Jennifer Bolinger record their reading to play back and criticize.

Is Latin a dead language? Dennis Clouse doesn't seem to think so as he conjugates this verb.

Language aids world communication

As the world grows smaller, countries are drawn closer together, and the need for universal understanding increases. C.H.S. offers Spanish and Latin, helping to improve understanding through communication.

Though Latin is considered a dead language, it comes alive in the classroom. Its study enlarges a student's understanding of English and other languages.

For the first time three years of Spanish was offered at C.H.S. this year. Students will now be able to acquire a major in this language. The routine of classes was interrupted when students learned their numbers and phrases by playing bingo or putting on plays in Spanish.

Bingo! First year Spanish students are learning their numbers in an easier manner.

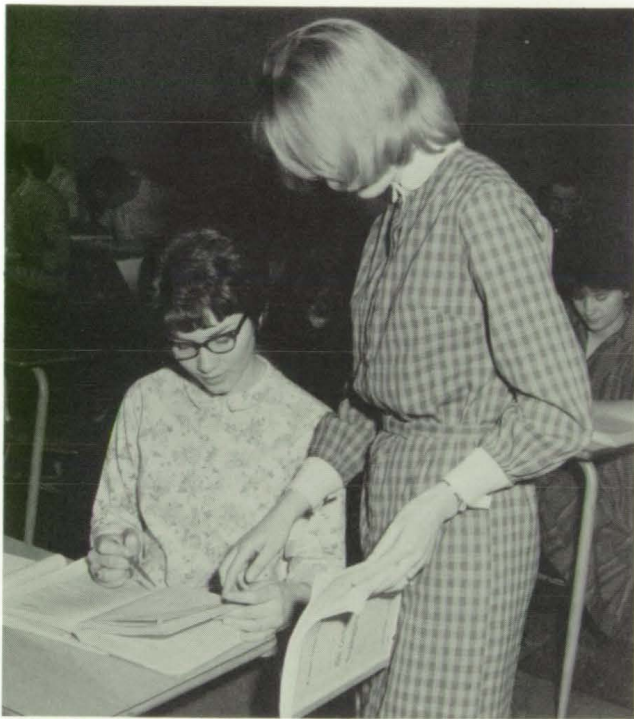

Third year Spanish has a new way of teaching. Students are using a simplified language lab.

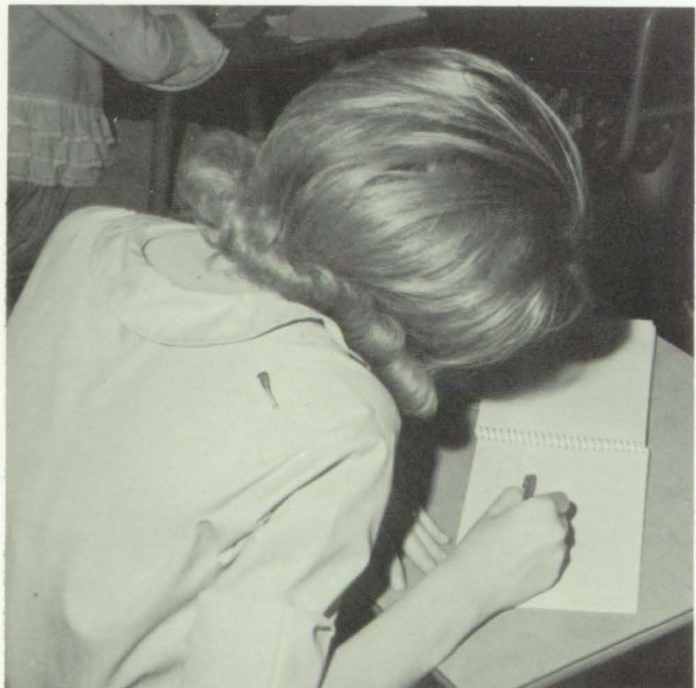

"Ready! Eyes on your copy! Type!" Typing students begin on their one-minute writings.

Students prepare for business world

Student teacher, Mrs. Seymore, helps Beverly Linvill with her business law.

Is shorthand as hard as it looks? Kay Diffendarfer doesn't seem to think so.

World history students studied the various trouble-areas of the world. Kim Straub points out the Congo to Larry Shively.

The key to the future lies in the study of the past and relating it to the present. By acknowledging this fact, CHS strives to better acquaint the student with his rapidly changing world and help him understand this change. To do this, social studies courses are offered and required.

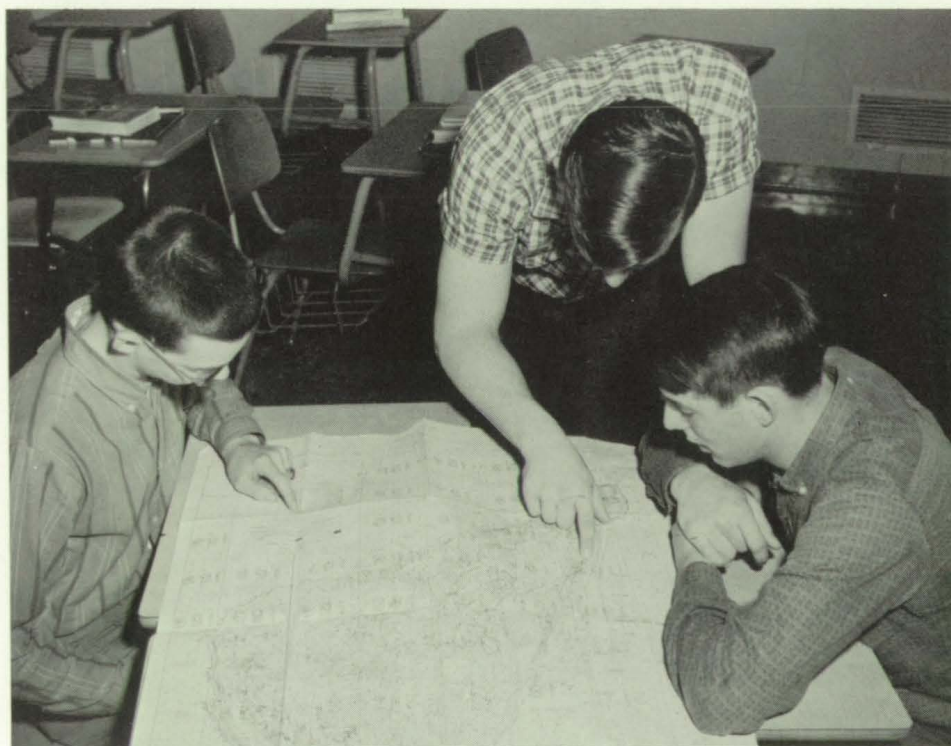

World history is offered to sophomores as an elective course. It gives the student a general look into the development and past of the world. U.S. history and government, required of juniors and seniors, help the student to understand his heritage and also to meet the present needs of the world.

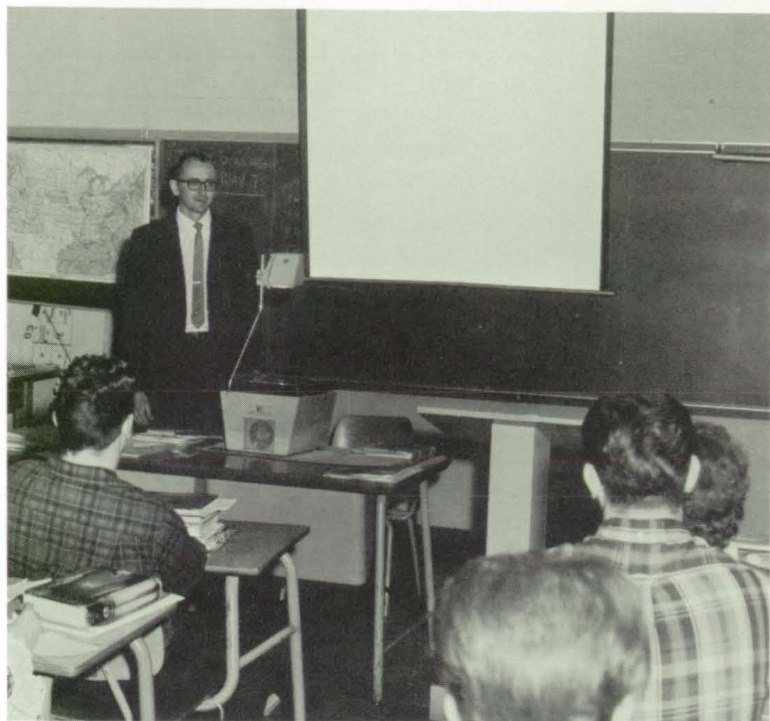

Besides learning history and government, one must learn the basic concepts of our nation's economy. Economics teaches this.

Through these courses, students become aware of the past and expectant of the future.

Mr. Lu highlighted government classes with an enlightening talk on the Southeast Asian Crisis.

Economics students Steve Tulley, Terry Skiles, Darrell Patton, Mary Hickman, and Phyllis Johnson listen to Nancy Schenher expressing her opinion.

CHS offers vocational training classes for the students who wish to learn the down-to-earth skills that will make them tomorrow's homemakers and farmers.

Girls taking home economics learn the skills of coping with the demands that are made of the modern-day homemaker. They find that home-economics is more than a mere cooking and sewing course. They also learn family relations, family budgeting, child care, and even social conduct.

Boys wishing to become farmers discover that agriculture has become a science. New farming methods must be learned in order to provide the increasing population with food products. Agriculture students study these modern techniques and also learn the care of intricate machines.

Donna McCoy's face beams success as she checks her culinary masterpiece.

Students learn necessary skills

Roger Crabill, Steve Linvill, Mike Miller, DeLynn Geiger, Bill Miller, and John Krider learned to prepare agriculture tape recordings to be played on local radio stations.

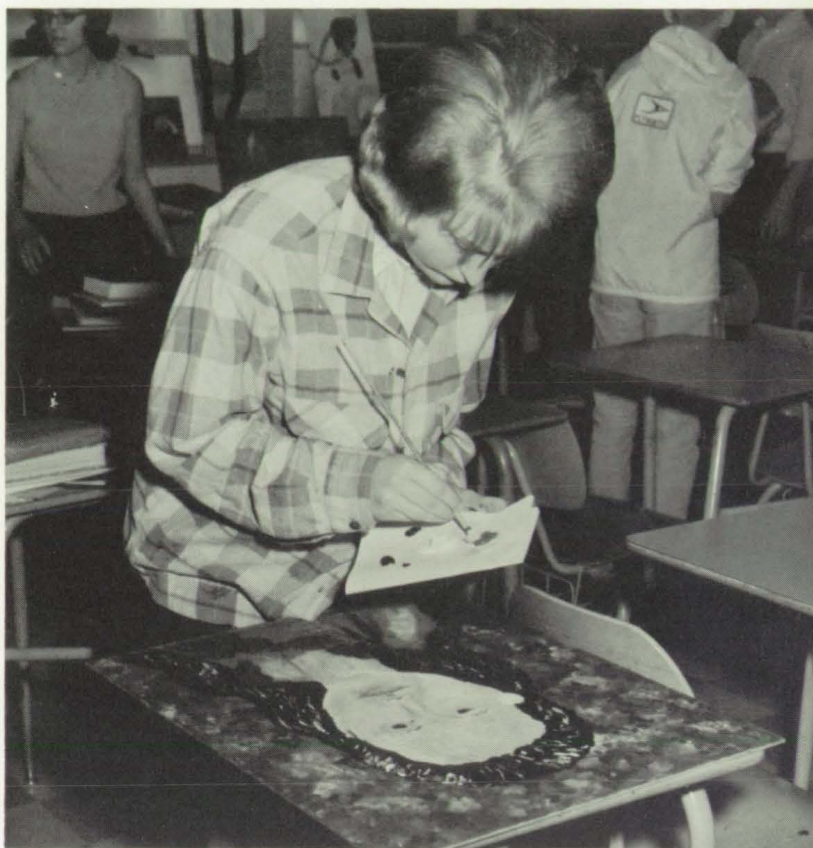

Jean Reed gives her undivided attention to getting that seam straight.

Automation has given man more free time to enjoy the finer things in life. At CHS art is considered as one of these "finer things." Under the supervision of Mrs. Irby, the art classes discovered the techniques of realistic composition and the emotion of modern art. Projects went beyond ordinary pencil and paper drawings to include the more involved mediums of art.

Added to the art department this year was the potter's wheel. Mastering this required concentration, steady hands, and a like for the feel of "goo."

By gaining a knowledge of art, students learned to appreciate and enjoy it more.

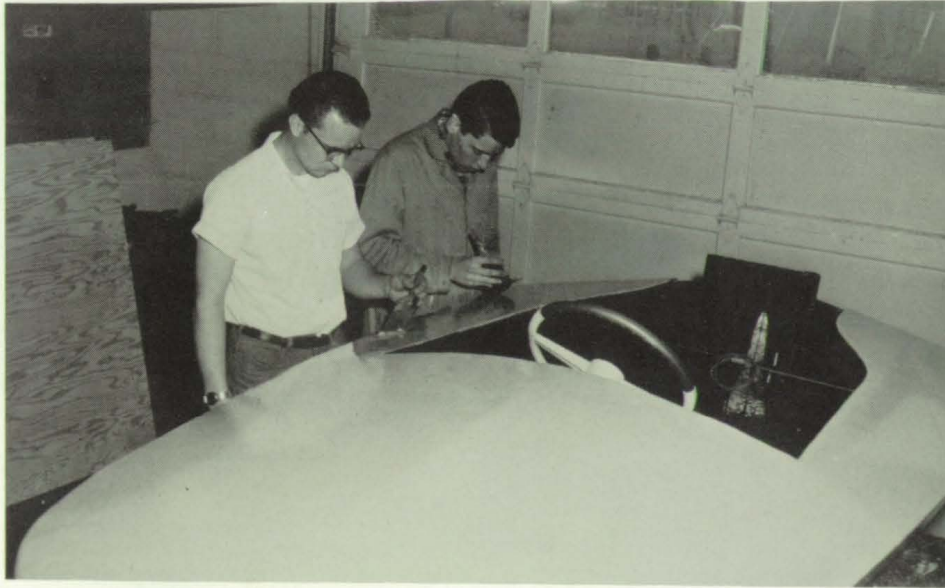

Jessica Knight puts the final brush strokes on her oil painting, giving it life-like characteristics.

Creative talents are expressed

Parents and teachers viewed the accomplishments of art students at the annual art exhibit.

George Pippenger and Randy Aumsbaugh add the final touches to Randy's skipjack. It took the seniors all year to build and fiberglass the boat.

Shop, mech. drawing - manual skills

Two of the courses offered by the industrial arts curriculum are shop and mechanical drawing.

Shop is offered to all high school boys. This course teaches boys to be familiar with the various hand and machine tools and the ability to make useful articles with them. As a project, shop students also take on minor repair work around the school.

Mechanical drawing is offered on a two year basis. Students taking the basic course learn to copy isometric and oblique drawings. Advanced students draw floor plans and learn the fundamentals of planning and carrying out building construction.

Junior students work on zoning the town for a mechanical drawing project.

It is a proven fact that driver education has cut down the accident rate across the nation. CHS contributes its share to this finding by offering a course in driver's training to those students who have reached the age of fifteen. In order to complete the course, a student must put in forty hours of book work and six hours of behind-the-wheel training.

The book work is offered during the school year to sophomores. Following this, the behind-the-wheel training is taken in the summer months. Instructors teach students all there is to learn about driving in a specially equipped training car. In this way students learn by experience.

Upon satisfactory completion of the course, students are able to receive a beginner's permit a month after their sixteenth birthday.

Busco's first all-varsity season

With the coming of the 1965 football season came the baptism of Busco's first varsity squad and new field in a tough varsity schedule. Another addition was the new coach, Mr. Crampton, who revised and added to the team's offense and defense.

In the first game the Eagles defeated Lakeland with a score of 20 to 0 on a muddy, rain-drenched field.

In the second game the Eagles rolled over a tough Eastside game to rack up their second rain-soaked victory on their new field. It was at this game that the new football field was dedicated. The field was christened Victor Field in honor of the Victor Gasket Manufacturing Corporation which donated the new scoreboard. Another of the major contributors to the field was the local Jaycees club, who donated the bleachers and initiated the construction of the field. McCoy's Lumber Company donated and constructed the press box and concession stand. The school board also helped out when they bought the fence that surrounds the field.

After the first two victories the Eagles were defeated by Geneva in a scorching, afternoon battle in which the Eagles had three TD's called back.

The next four games were also "heartbreakers," since the Eagles were defeated in hard-fought games. But even with those defeats the Eagles still had high spirits. For example, the Eagles were the first team to score against the undefeated Hicksville squad.

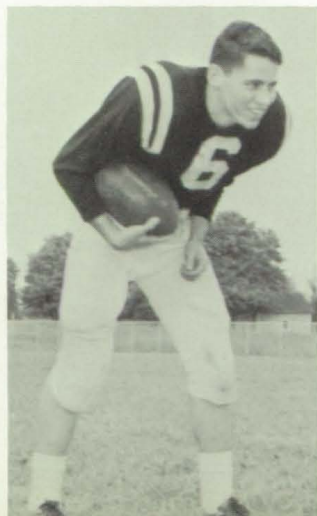

In the last game of the season the Eagles made a come-back by trouncing Prairie Heights in another rain-soaked victory.

All in all, the Churubusco Eagles pulled through with a record of three wins and five losses.

Churubusco Eagles come on strong

Coach Jake Delagrange and Assistant Coach Charles Jones discuss basketball plays and tactics during one of their many conferences.

This year when basketball season opened, "Hoosier Hysteria" hit thousands of Indiana basketball fans. Churubusco fans were no exception. A book of records and statistics is all that remains of the 1965-1966 season and there were many.

The Eagles started their season out slowly by losing six of their first eight games. Practice and experience soon rallied the boys around, and they bounced back by winning eight of their remaining thirteen games, tallying a 10-8 record for the regular schedule of games. The Eagles showed their stuff when they lost by only eight points to Garrett, rated first in northern Indiana. The Railroaders had to come from behind in order to beat the Eagles 45-37. It took a double overtime for well-regarded Wolf Lake to win over the Eagles 67-61.

As second-year members in the Allen County Athletic Conference, the Eagles lost to Ossian 72-62 in the ACAC tourney.

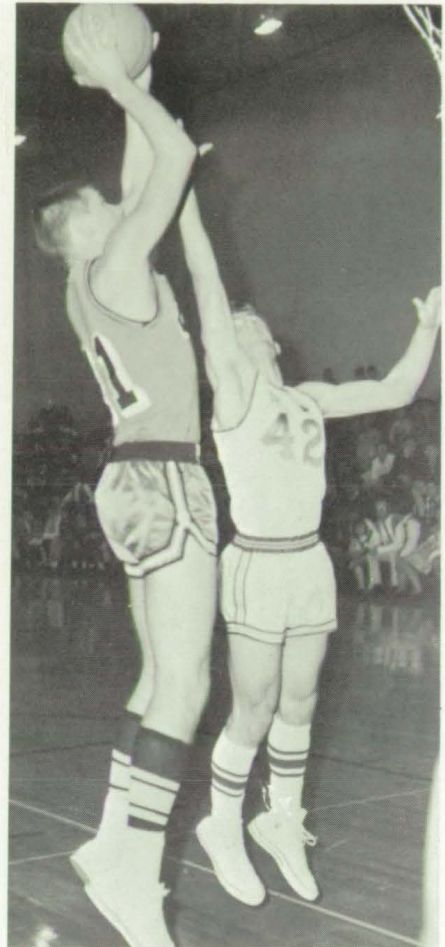

When the regular season of play ended, the Eagles found themselves rated strong contenders for the sectional. They proved their worth by edging hosting Kendallville 72-71 and entering the semi-finals. The Eagles were then defeated by Wolf Lake 65-60 in a game in which the Eagles led for 29 minutes before losing their lead in the middle of the fourth quarter.

Randy Stayer led the team in scoring with 292 points. He was followed by Roger Schinbeckler who tallied 280. Both seniors were honored by being selected to the All-Conference team.

Varsity Manager Randy Amsbaugh and B-Team Manager Mike Miller are always in call to fill the needs of the Eagles.

Tom Lang jumps high to throw in another two points for the Eagles.

The cheerleaders were responsible for leading the yells that spurred the Eagles to victory. Varsity squad was Nancy Schenher, Lana Fry, Nancy McDaniel, Barbara Green, and Tami Green, Barbara's niece.

"Jump, Tom, Jump!" yells the cheer-block as the whistle blows and another Eagle game begins.

Reserve squad gains experience

Rex Fletcher takes a jump shot as Kent Kessler stands poised for action.

The Churubusco Eagle reserve team, under Coach Jones, compiled a winning record of 10-8. With ten of fourteen players being sophomores, tomorrow's varsity future at CHS will be promising and outstanding.

Individual scoring was led by Stan Schener with 175 points. Stan Schener and Rex Fletcher led the field goal percentage with 43 per cent. Roger Crooks led the shooting at the foul line by hitting 67 per cent of his shots. In Team scoring, the Eagles averaged 39.2 points offensively. The team's highest scoring game was their final against Ligonier, winning 70-49. The Eagles made 39 per cent of their field goal attempts while hitting 52 per cent of their foul shots.

Cheerleaders Vickie Herron, Vickie Boggs, and Kathy Amber sparked the Eagle B-Team on to a successful season record.

Freshmen have fifty-fifty season

The Churubusco Eagles' Freshman Team started the season off with a bang by tallying five straight wins. Slacking off, they won two of the next ten games, compiling a record of 7 wins and 7 losses. The freshmen cagers put in a lot of experience which will be valuable to the reserve squad next year. Russell Swing led the team scoring with 159 points, and Dennis LaRue led the rebounding with a total of 136.

Jr. High compiles two good records

The Jr. High '65-'66 season is now in a book of records and statistics. The 8th grade, coached by Mr. Yager, finished the season with a 11-6 record. In the ACAC tourney they won three games and lost one to finish third.

The Eagles highest scoring game was against Monroeville, beating them 56-31. They averaged 37.2 points offensively while giving up 33.5 points defensively.

"Hoosier Hysteria" is known to all basketball fans throughout Indiana. With a promising 7th grade, it will certainly be known to Churubusco fans in the future. The 7th grade, under Coach Arrowsmith, completed their regular season with a record of 11-0. In tourney play, the Eagles defeated Wolf Lake before losing the final game in an overtime to Columbia City by one point.

Darrell Rapp led the 7th grade scoring with 81 points.

Unlike previous years when the games were played in the fall, this year's ACAC baseball action was in the summer. This was also the first year with Mr. Jones as coach.

Though the team had no wins, because they lacked experience and a regular pitcher, they did not lose their spirit. Toward the end of the season, the team had some close games. The team believes their record will improve next year, since they will have seven players returning of the regular nine.

The team had a .192 batting average. Rex Fletcher led with a .284 average.

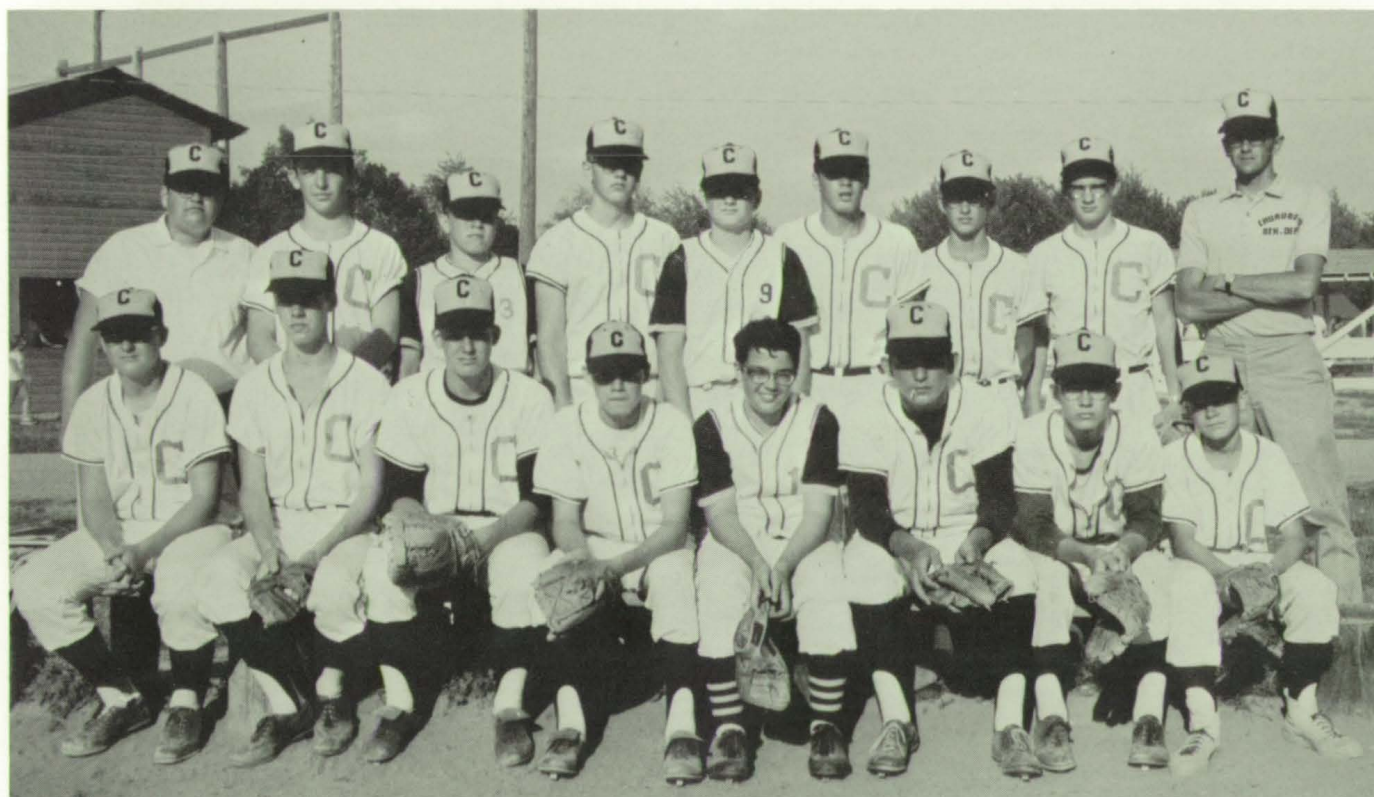

Rick McDowell is ready for the pitch. His bat may make the difference between winning or losing the game.

Golf team - drives, chips, and putts

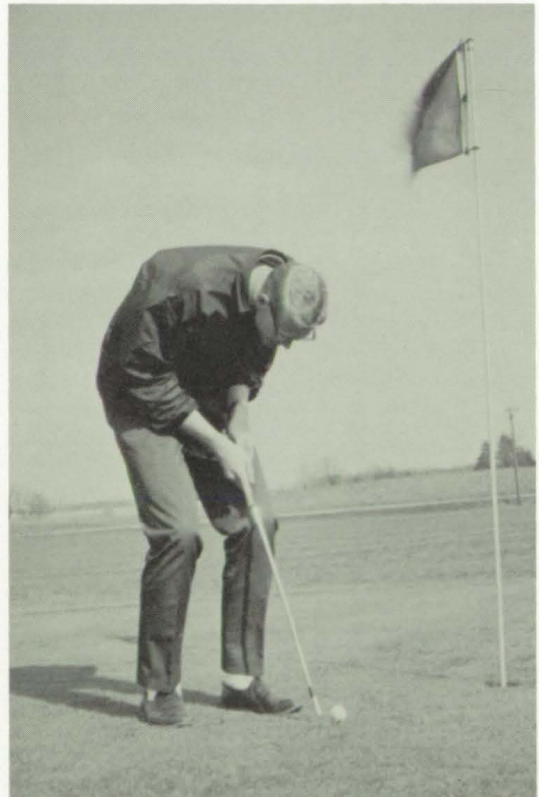

The 1965-66 golf team drove, chipped, and putted their way to a season of learning experience. Being the third year for golf at CHS, there was a large turnout for the competition of the key positions. Several times a week ten boys could be found at Duncan's Golf Course after school, diligently practicing for the coming meets.

The team placed second in the tough invitational match with Leo and Adams Central. At the end of the season the Eagles were rated in ninth place in ACAC competition. Letter winners were John Sturdivant, Terry Skiles, Errol Creech, Roger Crooks, and Dallas King. The team was coached by Mr. Larry Richey.

Track team ties for first in ACAA

The 1966 track team, under the coaching of Mr. Delagrange and Mr. Arrowsmith, finished with a season record of 26-2. The losses were to Columbia City and Leo. In the Allen County Athletic Conference the Eagles tied for first place with Leo.

During the course of the season eight new school records were set. Twelve of the fifteen letter winners will be returning next year.

The most outstanding trackman of the season was Tim Wilkins, a junior. Tim lowered his own record in the mile run and was the first runner from C.H.S. ever to qualify for regional competition and then advance to the state track meet at Indianapolis. There he placed seventh.

Cross Country "A Go-Go"

Coach Delagrange and his Eagle cross country runners compiled what certainly will go on record as the best cross country season in the school's history.

The Eagles finished with an overall mark of 55 wins against 7 losses. Championship and individual trophies were won in the Churubusco invitational, Goshen invitational, and the Allen County Athletic Conference meet.

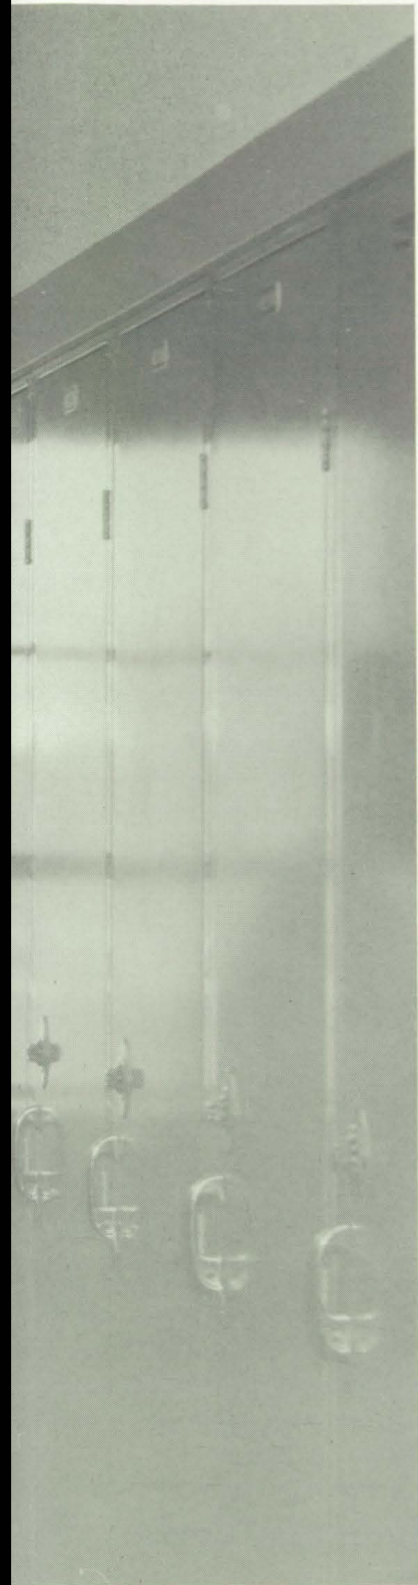

In the sectional meet at Wabash the team was able to prove their finish, but they had to settle for fourth place. Perhaps the greatest attribute to the success of the team was that of team effort and co-operation, which was displayed by everyone.

Tim Wilkins paced this year's team to many victories and set in cross country a new school record of 10:10.

An outstanding victory of the '65 season was the winning of our own invitational meet. DeLynn Geiger is shown receiving the first place team trophy for the Eagles from Mr. Robbins.

Mrs. Smith, secretary to the superintendent.

The superintendent, his secretary, and the members of the school board are the people behind the scenes who help Smith-Green schools running smoothly. Though their faces aren't seen as often as the school's teachers, they work hard at their individual jobs for the school's benefit. They are the backbone of the Smith-Green Corporation.

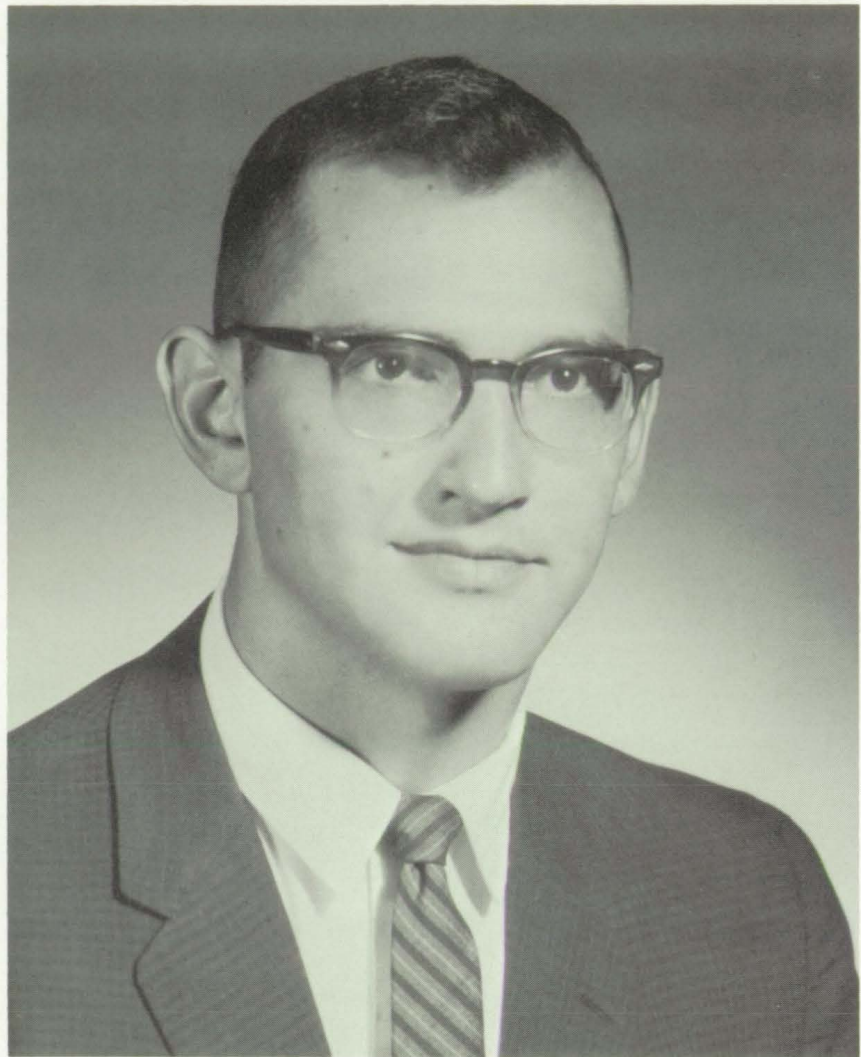

Board members establish policy

Members of the school board are Jason Smith, superintendent; Walter Linvill, 1st vice-president; Lester Sheets, treasurer; Everett Jones, president; Clarence Resler, secretary; Robert Johnson, 2nd vice-president.

In appreciation . . .

Though you may growl at us to keep off the radiators and keep from blocking the halls, the students of CHS sincerely thank you for your leadership and guidance. When we are loafing in the halls during activity period or when we do something wrong, it never fails that you are always there to catch us. We pester you after school, when you are trying to concentrate on your work, by playing musical instruments in the hall. Yet, you are the first to praise a student's accomplishments. Your school spirit is an example for the whole school. Your loyalty to and faith in the students of Churubusco High School makes us proud to say that you, Mr. Robbins, are our principal.

Those who solve our daily problems

Phyllis Zolman, office secretary, has been with the school many years. Each year brings new students, to whom she has to explain the blue slip, pink slip, and pass systems. But this is only one of her many jobs. She types, takes care of all money, trains the senior office helpers, and various other things. The school is indebted to her service.

The bus drivers often congregate here while they wait for the school day to end and their jobs to begin.

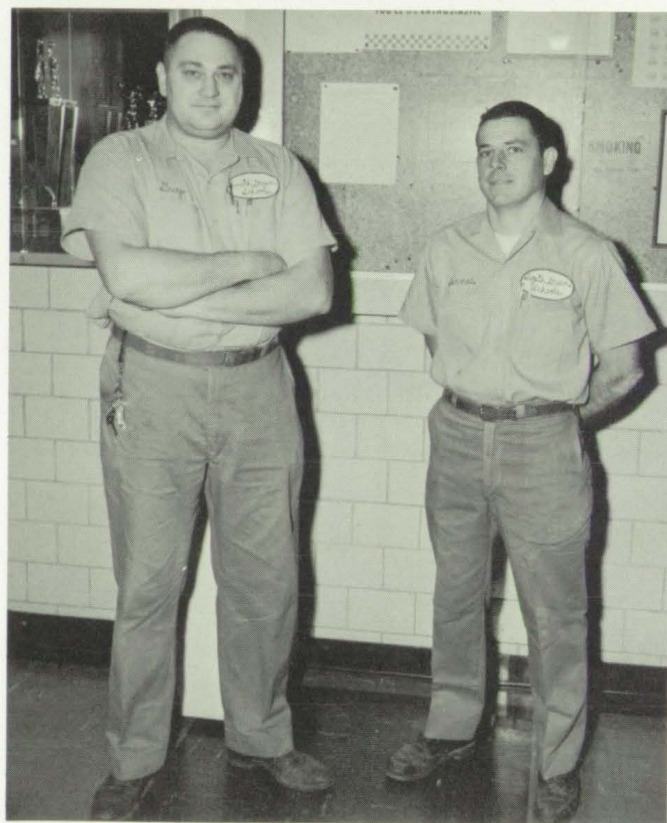

Staff faithfully serves our school

Neither rain, nor snow, nor sleet, nor hail prevented the bus drivers from the completion of their stops. On the coldest, snowiest morning one can expect to hear their horns arousing late sleepers. Without them, education of rural youth would be almost impossible.

Working until 12:00 or later at night, the janitors swept all the classrooms. While everyone else enjoyed vacations, they worked at waxing floors. The call, "Guy Allman, please come to the office," interrupted classes. But the whole school was indebted to their faithfulness.

Imagine how harrassed many mothers would be if they had to cook for 700 kids a day, every day. The cooks carefully planned the meals in order that they might be nutritionally balanced and good to eat.

Without these dedicated people, the school would soon cease to exist. Yet, they get little recognition. So here and now, we, the school, salute these people for their part in our school life.

Here we find our janitors, Guy Allman and Bernie Wappes, sparing one of their few free moments for a picture.

Do they ever get tired of cooking? It seems like our cooks; Nola Caley, Helen Pounds, Lucile Barnhart, Manager Waneta Crace, Lena Fulk, Florence Nun-chuck, Lucille Fudge, never do.

Future becomes reality for Seniors

The Class of 1966 started out their high school days in 1962 with determination. The many strangers that were present, that first year, developed into lasting friendships. The first year they began planning the courses that would help them in the future. They took new courses in their sophomore and junior years that developed their interests and knowledge. In their senior year they rounded out their courses with subjects they would need after high school.

As sophomores they began their money-making projects with Christmas card sales. The highlight of the sophomore year was the ordering of their class sweaters which they proudly wore.

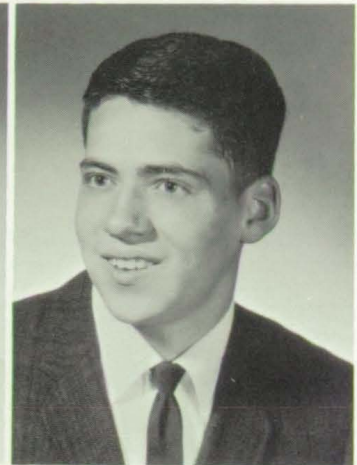

The junior year was filled with selling candy at the junior store during ballgames and during noon hours at school. Another money-making project kept the juniors busy selling candy. All hard work was rewarded by breaking all previous records. Their play "Nine Girls" was also memorable and helped bring in money. Class rings were a big part of their junior year. After waiting patiently the juniors were able to show their rings to everyone when they arrived. With their hard-earned money they planned a prom for the seniors which was held in the Zurich Room of the Gerber House with the theme "Climb Every Mountain."

The busiest and most memorable year of all was the senior year. Magazines sales started the seniors working the first whole day of school. Then there were the fish fries that every senior will remember as being fun and hard work. Along with making money the seniors also spent money on senior pictures, announcements, and caps and gowns. Then came the never-forgettable senior trip to Washington D. C. and New York. The senior year finally came to a close with graduation and tears. As the Class of 1966 looks back on their high school days, they can be proud of their achievements.

Three-year olds Phil Carpenter and Vicky Herron take time out from their guns, suckers, and tricycles to have their picture taken.

Unlike their two previous high school years, the Class of 1967 had many more activities to keep them and their class sponsors, Miss Smith, Mr. Jones, and Mrs. Shaffer, busy.

The first project of the year, the junior play entitled "You the Jury" and directed by Mr. Norman, was a new and enjoyable experience. The Junior Store, which Mr. Norman also sponsored, was managed by Jeanie Read, Charlene Woll, and Rick McDowell.

Like last year's card sales, they went over their goal in candy sales. Miss Smith sponsored a pizza party for those who sold fifty boxes or more.

The first class party of the year was a "come-as-you-were-when-you-were-three" party. Tricycle races, apple bobs, egg-throwing contests, peanut-rolling contests, and temper tantrums made the party a roaring success.

During the card sales drive sophomores checked their records and ordered more cards. Kim Straub, team captain, is checking the records of Carolyn Vandewalker and Stan Schenher.

The smallest class of Churubusco High School proved they were not so small in their ambitions. With the guidance of their sponsors, Mr. Norman and Mrs. Snyder, the sophomores succeeded in breaking the card sale record held by last year's Sophomore Class. Penny Lamle, selling $109 worth, was top seller.

The office of class president was filled by Danny Zeigler. He was assisted by Ron Friskney. Wendy Hunt took notes and Mark Hollopeter kept financial records. Diane Pressler and Barbara Green were the class's representatives to the Student council.

There was much excitement as the sophomores climbed the first traditional rung—the acquirement of their class sweaters. Their sweaters were a royal blue with white numerals. The white emblem was drawn by Joe Merrill.

This year 105 freshmen entered into the new and exciting world of high school. They had many strange and amusing experiences: wandering through the halls, forgetting their locker combinations, going to the wrong classes—all are the problems of being a freshman.

The freshmen elected as class officers—Tim Papenbrock, president; Linda Konger, vice-president; Janet Plummer, secretary; Terri Maggert, treasurer; and Bonnie Gaff and Pierre Longardner, student council representatives.

Freshman sponsors were: Mrs. Irby, Mr. Sloan, and Mr. Williams.

The freshman basketball team had much success during their season. The freshman cheerleaders, Ginny Gaff, Linda Konger, and Terri Maggert, sparked the team to many victories.

Fun was had by all at their first class party.

Staff's Note

Dear fellow students,

Recording the highlights of an eventful, worthwhile school year has been the purpose and privilege of the 1966 Tusitala staff. However, in a larger sense we have tried to capture and preserve not only the concrete events and happenings, but the times of fun and joy and the moments of seriousness and sorrow as well. It is our sincere wish that this volume will not only please you now, but that in years to come it will serve as an accurate record, bringing back the memories and the spirit of Churubusco High School in 1966.

Sincerely yours,

The 1966 Tusitala Staff
