Eagles Upset Leo Lions in Homecoming 12-6

A week of festivities for the 1968 Churubusco High School Homecoming was climaxed by a football game Saturday afternoon and a dinner that night. Each alumnae class was asked to enter a float in the parade. The students roused pep for the game at a big, blazing bonfire Friday night. Miss Jenny Gaff was crowned Homecoming Queen at the half-time festivities. The alumnae and students witnessed the team's victory over Leo. The clash of gold and purple on a bright, sunny afternoon seemed to symbolize the spirit of homecoming.

RMN Takes CHS by 60%

Awareness of world politics and the United States government provoked the students to study and consider the man who ran for political positions in 1968. "Dump the Hump" and "Down with Tricky Dicky" were slogans that graced the halls and classrooms. A mock election was conducted by the senior classes. Students in grades 7 through 12 were eligible to vote after they had registered. Campaign speeches for the three presidential candidates were given on the Friday before elections. Dennis Clouse defended the campaign platform of Richard M. Nixon. Clifford Householder spoke for Hubert H. Humphrey and Tim Papenbrock campaigned for George C. Wallace. The audience applauded and booed enthusiastically as different issues were presented. Hopefully, this experience created citizens who would take the privilege of voting seriously.

Eagle People Back Team in Pep Sessions

"Good luck, team, good luck," was a familiar chant resounding in the gym during the pep sessions. The cheerleaders spent most of the week preparing skits and competition yells. A tricycle race, a "wedding," and spirit stick contests were a few of the highlights. The class which displayed the best school spirit won the stick until the next contest.

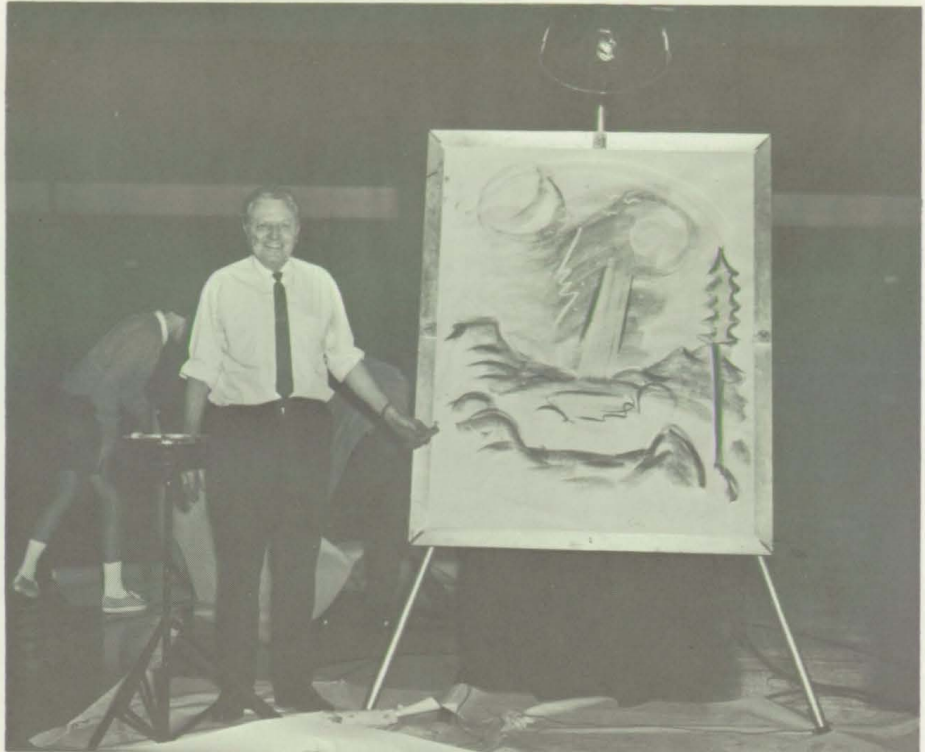

Donna Butler and Terri Maggert can say that Steve Watson is the dirtiest old man at CHS.

Interesting Assemblies Fascinate Students

Assemblies offered a break in the daily routine of school life. Many fine convocations were chosen by the 1968 student council to be presented to the student body. Poisonous snakes, a creating artist, and the music of a symphonic band fascinated everyone. Some of the girls did not appreciate the beauty of a rattlesnake loose on the gymnasium floor, but that assembly will never be forgotten. Glowing colors came alive and were woven into a story by the artist. The symphonic band presented a wide variety of well-played music. These assemblies proved to be educational as well as interesting.

"Clara, did Henry ever look under your walnut shell?" asks Donna Butler of Robin Allman.

Kathy Kirchoff demonstrates the fine art of make-up to Mark Boggs.

"Three for Friday"

The speech class presented a trilogy of one act plays, "Three For Friday." How well each part was learned and general cooperation were evaluated in the grades of each person. "Dress Rehearsal" was a comical farce on the story of Cinderella. "Meet Me in Forest Lawn" was a parody on the feelings of two older women as they prepared to face death. A kindly old man and his daughter tried to befriend a criminal in "Junk Yard."

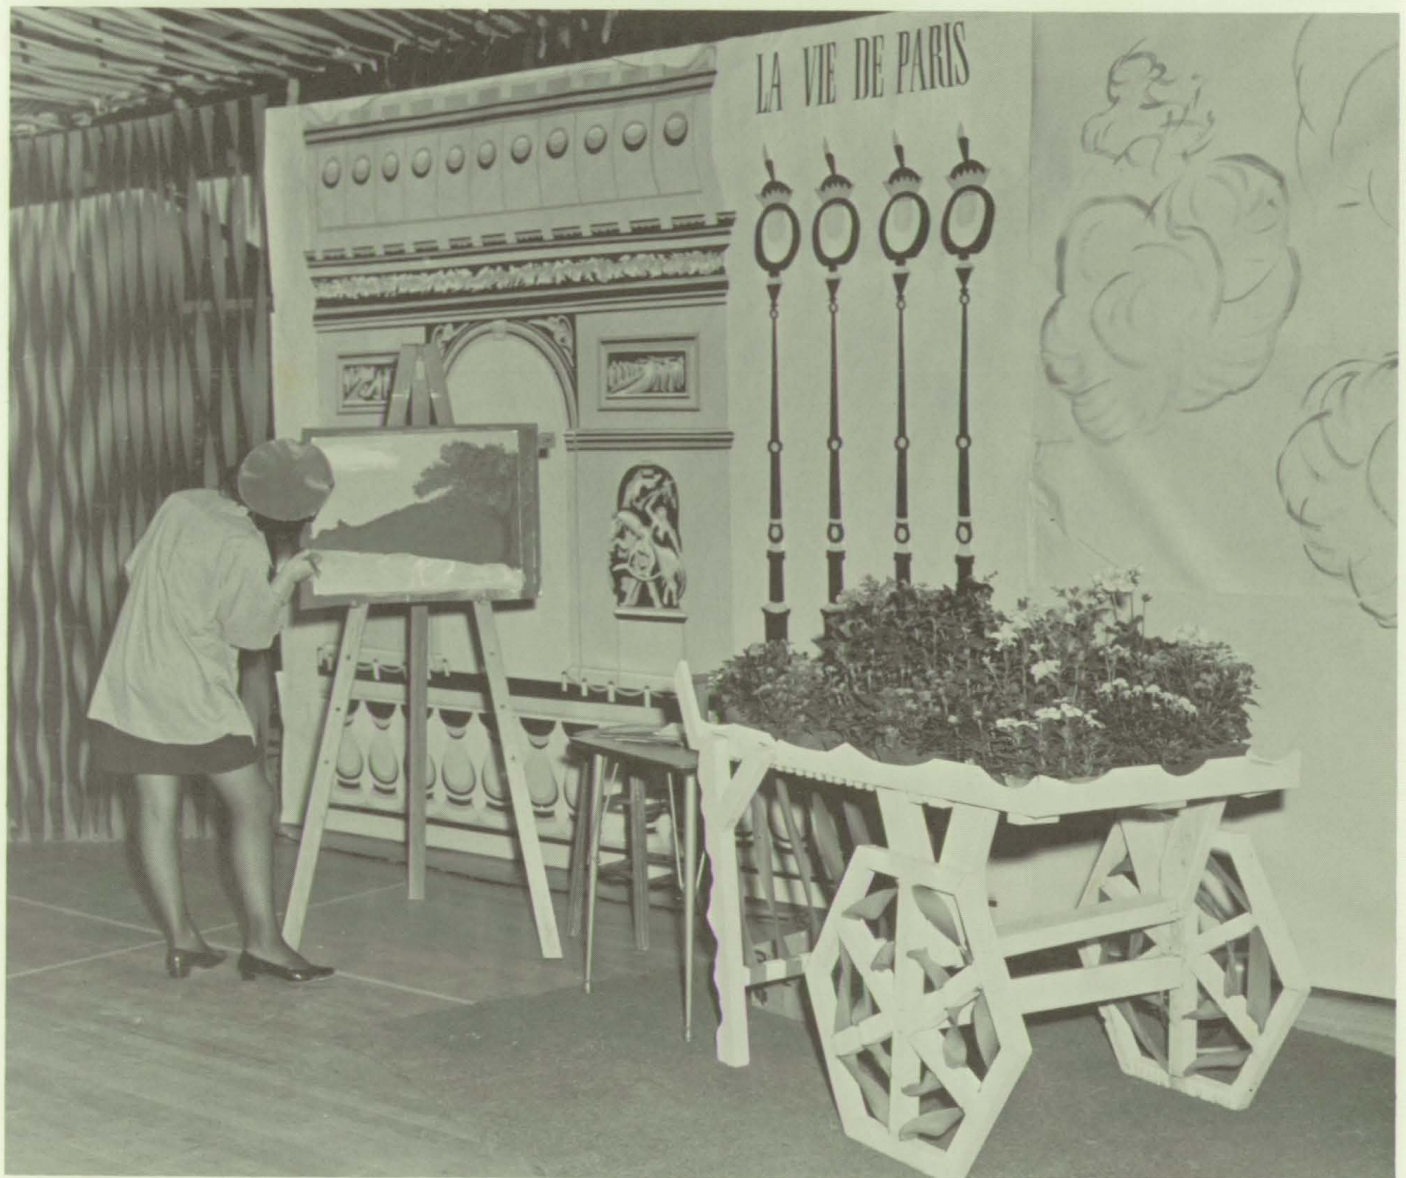

A good-sized audience turned out to see the play. The experience provided the class insight into some of the problems and rewards that professional actors encountered.

Small World of Ecstasy

"It's a Small World," was the theme of the 1969 prom. Jann Egolf and Tom Blackburn were chairmen of the event and guided the various committees to a lovely and successful prom.

Seniors Graduate to World of Responsibility

The Cleftones sing a final farewell to the graduates.

Baccalaureate services were held Sunday afternoon, May 25th in the high school gymnasium. Reverend Prichett challenged the class to "do their own thing" and accept the promises the future held. Dennis Clouse sang "I Believe". In spite of the hot weather, many proud parents and friends watched the class of 1969 receive their diplomas from Mr. Everett Jones, president of the school board. Commencement exercises were held Wednesday evening, May 28 in the high school gymnasium. Reverend Philbrook gave the address. The main theme of his address was "Your Responsibility in Life." The seniors felt mixed emotions of sadness and happiness. The flame of tradition and memory glowed in the friendship circle. Each graduating senior represented a link. The Cleftones sang "The Impossible Dream."

"It's finally over" is the general feeling of these graduates.

Cindy Kistler received the D.A.R. award.

EAGLE POWER

John Cook and Connie Hooten concentrate on the complexities of English.

The various principles of grammar and spelling rules were taught in the English classes. Students utilized the knowledge they had gained when they wrote themes and essays. The final challenge was presented in senior English in the form of a research paper. The paper contained at least 2,000 words, and all students completed one in order to pass the course.

Students who were planning on attending college or those who had future plans for an occupation in which a foreign language would be useful, were enrolled in the Spanish and Latin courses. Wider horizons and broader outlooks were acquired through the study of the country's history and arts. Huey Hazen preferred sitting in the wastebasket rather than at his desk one morning in Spanish II. This sight offered a break in the daily routine.

Social-minded students who enjoy public speaking include speech class in their schedules. Twenty-three students met every morning with Mr. Norman in Room Six. Various activities such as free discussion, movies, plays, and demonstrations added interest to the class. Learning to listen to others and to respect their opinions was a requirement along with completing assignments. Learning to express oneself without nervousness and having one's opinion respected were some of the benefits of speech class.

Great works out of the past, such as Dicken's Great Expectations, George Eliot's Silas Marner, and Edgar Allen Poe's The Raven, became familiar to CHS literature students. Through the writings is transmitted the author's understanding of the meaning and interpretation of life.

Health, one requirement for the sophomore year, wouldn't have been the same without Mr. Mull's diligent attention. The class gave everyone an opportunity to learn about the body and its many complex systems. Developing new health habits and controlling the old ones seemed to take the interest of each student.

Exploratory teaching is one of the newer classes offered at Churubusco. It is designed to introduce members of FTA to the everyday problems of the classroom. Each student received a teaching assignment and attended that class each day, observing and eventually experimenting with various teaching methods.

Russ Swing demonstrates how to solve a problem to his Algebra I exploratory teaching class.

Evidently Jeff Schenher isn't as interested in history as Marcia McEowen is.

The World of History

Social Studies students learn of the past and present history of the world in which we live. Social studies includes studies of the United States in U.S. history, the study of our government, its formation and growth in government classes and the study of the world history in junior high social studies classes. Government and U.S. history are required subjects for seniors and juniors. World history is offered to sophomores interested in further study of world events.

Business Students Pursue Clerical Careers

Vicki Hanauer, one of the girls selected for the Vocational Business Program, works in the bank.

Chris Coleman seems relaxed and ready to work on the day's typing assignment.

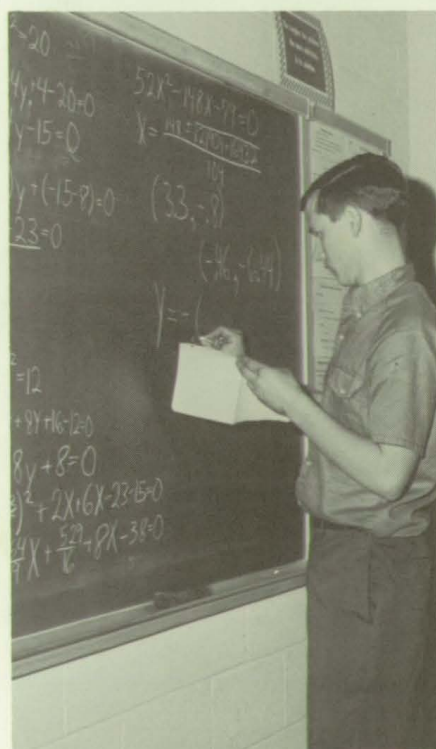

Kim Johnson discovers that using the slide rule isn't so hard after all.

The math program offered courses for both the academic and business worlds. Mr. Weaver taught the academic sections, and Mr. Woodcox taught the business and general math courses. Algebra I and II students learned the fundamentals of modern math and to apply them in working algebraic equations. Competition in the computing of math puzzles was kept among the members of geometry and the other classes. Anyone who did not understand how to use the slide rule soon learned in trigonometry. Business math presented the basics of bookkeeping for students who were more interested in the practical use of math.

Equations, Headaches Make Math Courses

Earl Brendel displays the solution of a complicated algebraic equation to his classmates.

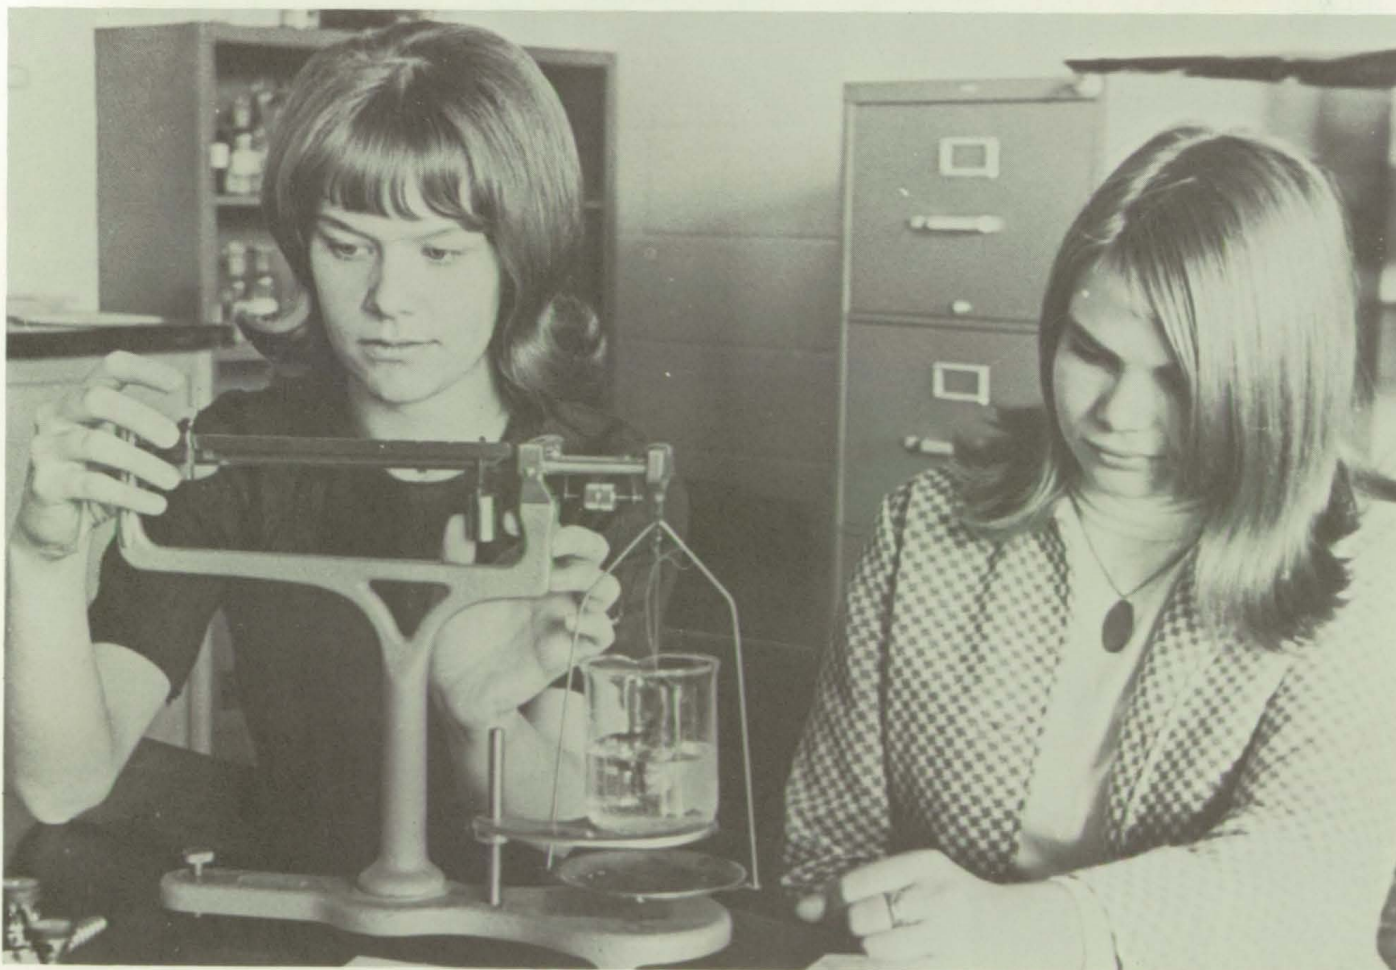

Mike Barrett, Jeff Blake, Cindy Herron, and Mike Rollins observe the construction of three-dimensional objects with the use of pyramids, triangles, and cylinders.

Eagles Study Science World

Two new science courses offered in 1969, electricity and earth science, provided a practical science background for future years as well as possible vocational courses.

The academic courses, chemistry and physics, challenged the students with the composition of matter and the nature of light, sound mechanics, and atomic structure. A greater understanding of life and an appreciation of nature stemmed from the biology courses offered.

Future Nurses Club began its third year with Mrs. Baughman as sponsor. Elected officers were Cathy Gillum, president; Toni Johnson, vice-president; Marily Harlan, secretary; Linda Hurst, treasurer; and Anne Riecke, reporter. The club was established with the goal of giving students a new and broader look at career ideas in nursing.

The Churubusco Organization of Librarians began its second year with the librarian, Mrs. Retherford, as the sponsor. The officers were Karlette Watson, president; Lori Fahl, vice-president; Marcia Sheets, secretary; Anne Riecke, treasurer; and Ann Sumbrun, reporter. COOL members donated their study hall time to help in the library and improve the facilities.

Bands Swing to CHS Beat

The black and gold uniforms of the Churubusco High School Band, directed by Mr. Fouts, flashed across the football field many times during the '68 season. The pounding of the drums and the sharp clear whistle of the drum major seemed to be a part of the atmosphere.

The pursuit of new marching uniforms dominated the band scene. Many projects were sponsored by the band and the Band Parents Association in order to raise money. A Country and Western show was presented by a travelling group in March. Various organizations from the community had banquets in the cafeteria. Members of the band and their parents prepared and served the meals. The band hoped to have the uniforms by the fall.

A Christmas concert was given in the gym, which was decorated in Charlie Brown's Christmas style. The pep band added color to the home basketball games with popular pieces such as "Love is Blue" and "By the Time I Get to Phoenix." The band as a whole presented two half-time shows during the basketball season. Further appreciation of music and the spirit of cooperation were values learned by the band members.

Student Council Guides CHS Student Body

The Student Council, led by Clifford Householder, meets to discuss future projects.

Along with cheerleader try-outs in the spring the Churubusco student body experienced the excitement of the Student Council presidential campaign. Members of the junior class with a grade average of above C were eligible to run. Each candidate was required to make a speech before the student body stating his aims and views. Clifford Householder was the '69 president.

The Student Council took charge of getting organizations to sponsor the record hops after the ballgames. They also chose the assembly programs for the next school year.

Today's Student Council members may be tomorrow's leaders.

Students who were prospects for National Honor Society were rated on the basis of contact with teachers in the classroom, in extra-curricular activities, and through general activity in and out of school. If the students had done well in the areas of leadership, character, and service, they deserved support and recognition. They were given this recognition through the National Honor Society. The honor of being made a member of this society is awarded to the students in a special assembly before the entire student body. Letters are sent to the parents of these students, inviting them to attend, but the students elected to receive this honor have no fore-hand knowledge. Being elected to the National Honor Society is the highest honor given by CHS.

Eagle Power Explodes in 1969 Tusitala

Jo Ann Honeywell and Robin Allman discuss the format of the 1969 Tusitala.

In an attempt to record the color, excitement, and activity of Churubusco High School, the staff, under the sponsorship of Mr. Hackworth, spent many hours cropping pictures and writing copy. "Eagle Power" was chosen as a theme representative of CHS and the year 1969.

The staff was represented at the High School Journalism Institute by the editor, Robin Allman. Jo Ann Honeywell worked as assistant editor, Linda Geiger as lay-out editor, and Ginny Schwaberow as copy editor.

Laments of, "This picture doesn't fit," "Would you like to buy an ad?" and "Only three days until deadline, gang!" were familiar as the yearbook about "Eagle Power" neared completion.

FTA Prepares for Career in Teaching

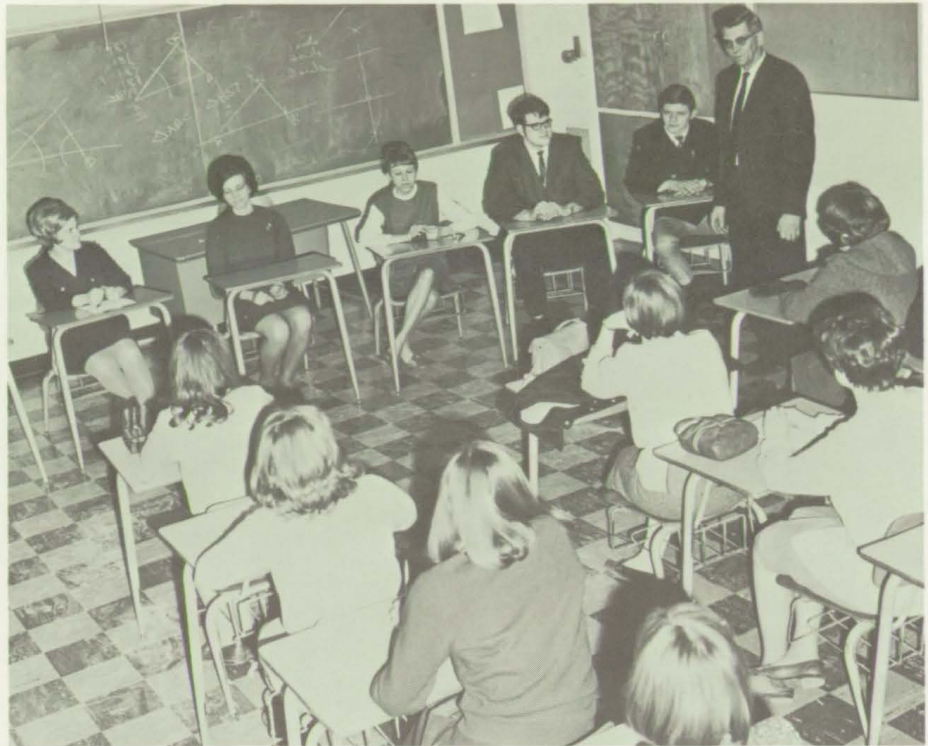

FTA began a good year with a new sponsor, Mr. Tennell. The officers were Dennis Clouse, president; Jann Egolf, vice-president; Pam McCoy, secretary; and Linda Konger, treasurer.

The club sponsored a skating party from which the proceeds went toward a scholarship to be awarded to a senior member. At Christmas the members presented gifts to residents of the Allen County Children's Home.

Junior and senior club members received a special invitation to a College Night program, proposed to familiarize students and their parents with aspects of different colleges, held at Columbia City.

Exploratory teaching, for which FTA is a requirement, proved to be a rewarding time for the senior members. It gave them a chance to have a first-hand on-the-job look at teaching.

A panel of first year teachers informs FTA of the experiences they have encountered.

The Spanish Club started the year by forming a constitution and selecting a name, colors, and a motto for their club. They chose El Circulo Espanol which means The Spanish Circle for the name, purple and white for the colors, and for the motto, "Poco a poco se va ejos," which means "Little by little we go far." As a project they adopted three orphans who were brothers and sisters, Rose Mary, Mary Rose, and Milton Resendez. The officers were Russ Swing, president; Huey Hazen, vice-president; Anne Riecke, secretary; Keith Targgart, treasurer; Lana Wakeman, reporter, and Connie Dafforn, parliamentarian. Their sponsor was Miss Krider.

The Latin Club officers were Brad Byrd, president; Daryl Rapp, vice-president; Tom Blackburn, secretary; and DeLara Zolman, treasurer. Their sponsor was Mr. Williams. The goal of the Latin Club was to interest students in the study of the Romance languages and the countries of their origins.

Campus Life

Under the direction of Mr. Hackworth, Campus Life, in a casual and informal atmosphere, discusses the provocative and contemporary issues facing teenagers, and gets to the core of the problem without sounding official or adult.

Bridges of communication are often built by unique group activities such as "hearse" packs, pillow fights, man-hunts, and of course famous Campus Life "Electric Chair" (harmless, but effective—the kids get a charge out of this one.)

Break the balloon—not the foot!

Sponsored by Mrs. Baughman, the FHA installed their 1968-69 officers in the spring of 1968. One of the highlights of their first meeting was the initiation of new members. Later on in the year they had a potluck supper in which each member brought her favorite dish and its recipe. The club also collected old magazines to take to a nursing home. The FHA had several fund-raising projects such as selling cookbooks, the Shamrock Dance, and the sale of popcorn at home basketball games. Some of the money from these projects will be used for the purchase of a new popcorn machine. Composed of girls who have taken Home Economics, FHA helps to complement their knowledge of the basics of homemaking.

The Camera Club, with Mr. Scribner as sponsor, started the year with the election of officers at the first meeting. The task of president was given to Ted Shively. Bill Fogle, Kerry Tanner, and Becky Akers were given the offices of vice-president, secretary, and treasurer, respectively. The club members met to learn the fundamentals of photography. Samples of the work of the Camera Club were exhibited at the PTA Open House at the beginning of the year.

Mr. Barger was the sponsor of the Art Club. Officers were elected as follows: president, Don Wilkins; vice-president, John Tomlinson; secretary, Sandy Hendrickson; treasurer, Steve Barcus. The purpose of the club is to give its members a chance to work on additional projects that they don't have time to finish in class.

Choruses Vocalize in Unison

Cantatas, scales, and robes were symbols of the chorus member's world. Their main goal was to present good music that people of all backgrounds could enjoy. The students gained a deeper insight into the varied aspects of music. Mrs. Norris directed the chorus, and Jann Egolf was secretary. The Clef-tones became a school group and took lessons from Mrs. Norris.

The chorus was confronted with one major problem. Due to the scheduling of classes, there were only about twenty students involved in this activity. This handicap did not stop the chorus from endeavoring to be better than ever. Solo and ensemble contests gave a chance for each student to perform individually and to discover his own music ability.

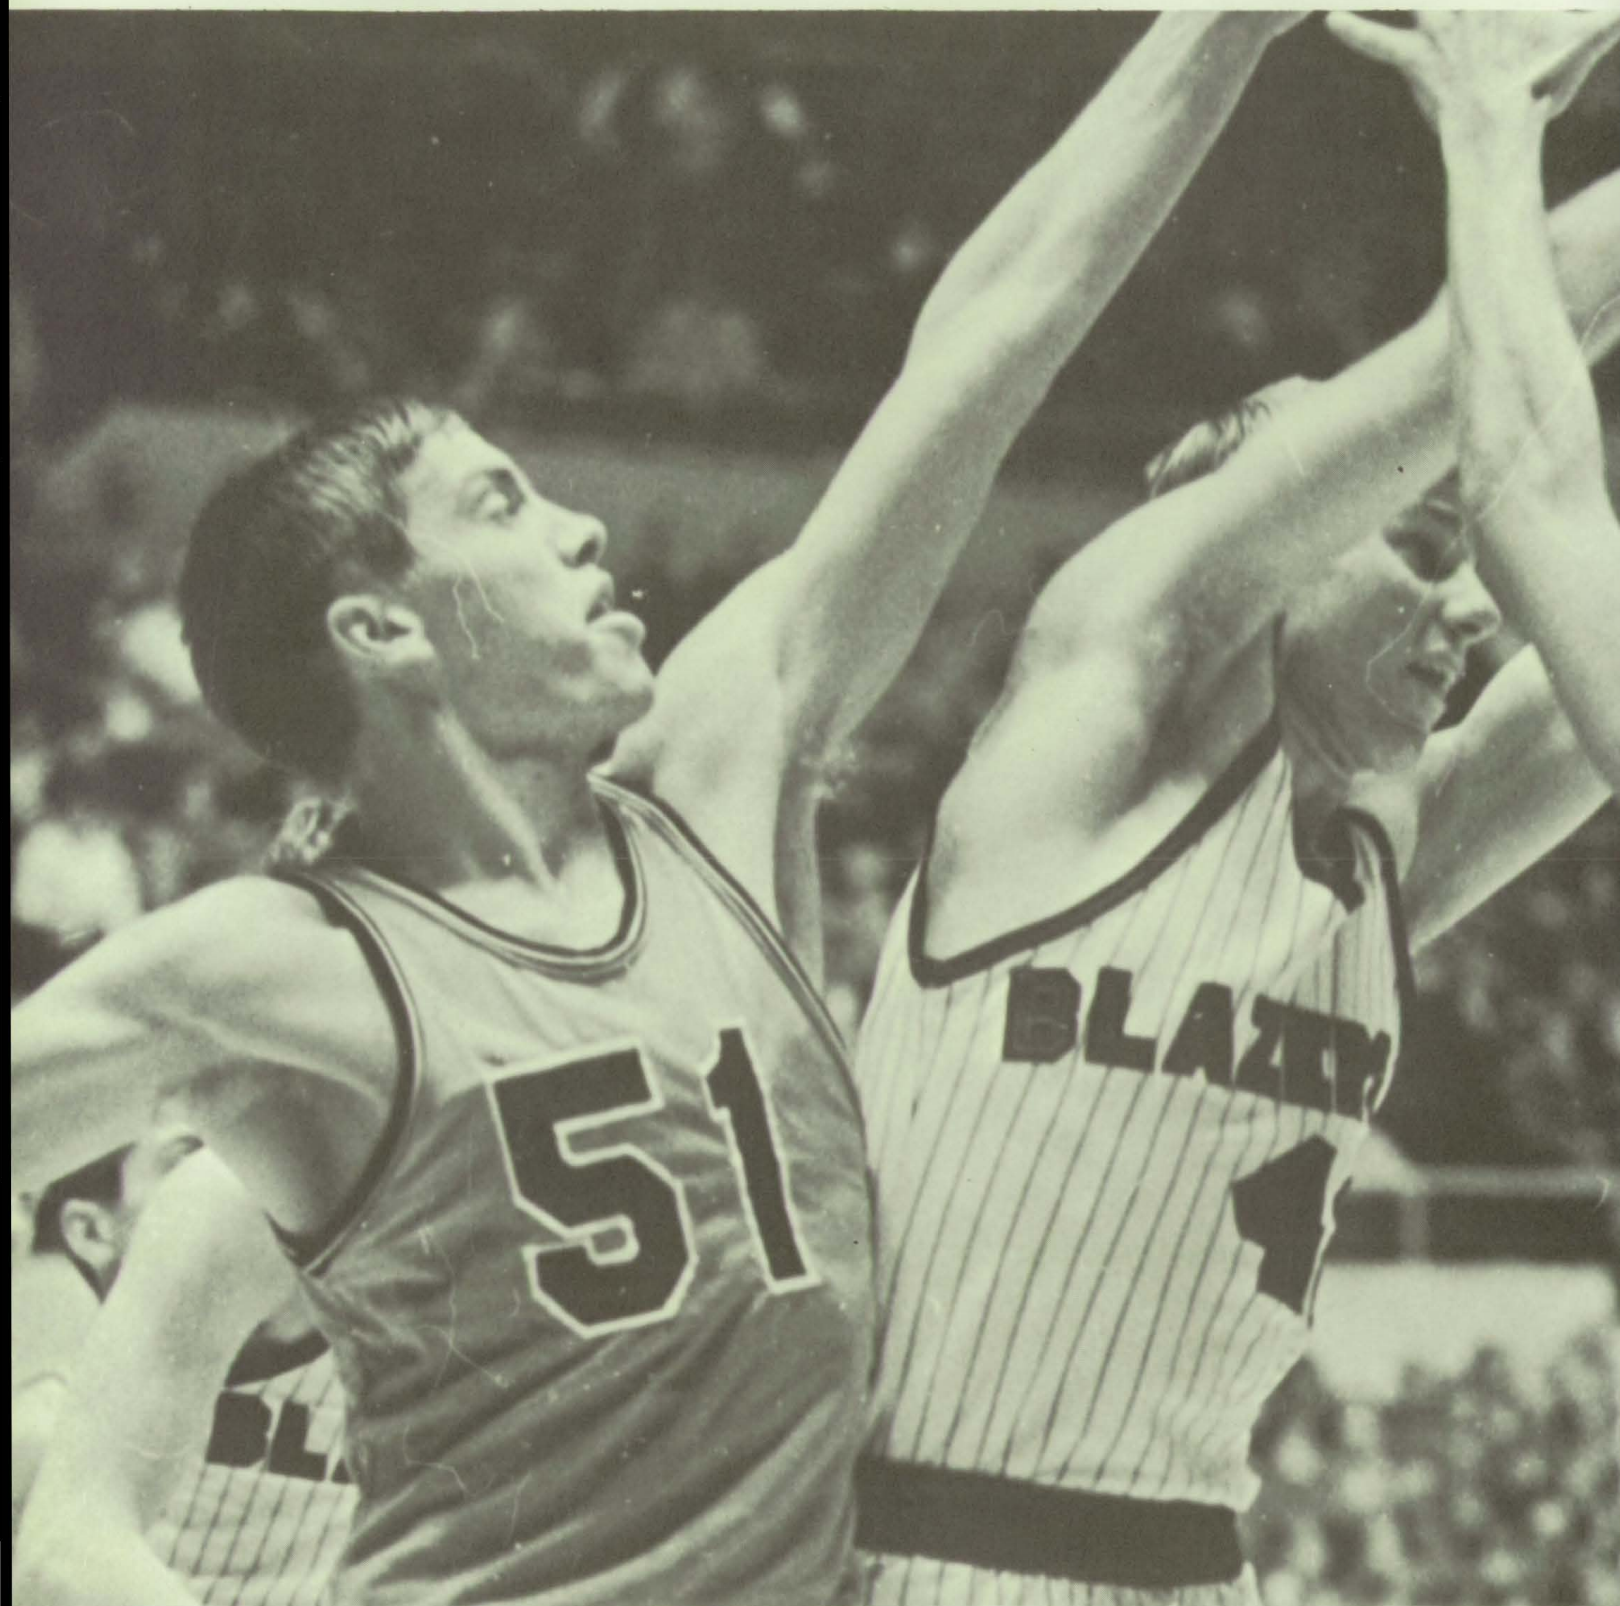

Mrs. Norris leads her vibrant chorus.

Eagles Pace 33-43 Record

In the fall of 1968 the cross country team compiled a record of 33 wins and 43 losses. Despite being a very young team they showed great promise for the 69 season, working hard all the time. The top five runners for Churubusco were as follows: Ed McEowen, Daryl Rapp, Tom Blackburn, Jerry Partin, and Roger Allman.

Churubusco ran in the ACAC and placed sixth. They also ran in the Goshen Invitational and placed seventh. The Eagles are looking forward to an outstanding season next year, with several lettermen returning.

Eagles Trample to Stunning 5-4 Season

The Eagle's 1968-69 season finished above the .500 mark with a 5-4 record in addition to winning the jamboree 6-0.

The season was highlighted by an exciting homecoming game. Each class was required to collect wood for the bonfire the night before the game as part of the spirit stick contest. The halftime festivities were climaxed with the crowning of the 1968-69 homecoming queen, Jenny Gaff. Her court included Joan Gaff, Debbie Gaff, Valerie Swaberow, and Bonnie Gaff.

The Eagles defeated the unbeaten Leo Lions 12-6.

The Eagles also won another exciting game by defeating Prairie Heights in the last fourteen seconds of the game with a pass interception by Ron Ebert who ran 46 yards for a touchdown.

Other team members adding to CHS victories were Randy Hooten, with five touchdowns, Huey Hazen, Rick Zeedyk, and Tim Papenbrock with two each.

Closing the season was the Northfield game. This was the game that determined a winning season for the Eagles. The very spirited team won the game by a score of 6-0.

Girls' Team — CHS' First

Basketball was offered to all high school girls for the first time last year. Of some twenty girls who tried out for the team, eleven were chosen to represent the school. Since the gym was hard to secure due to the boys' team practices, the girl's team held practices in the elementary gym. The girls needed a lot of training to improve and develop their skills.

Three games were played with area schools, but the team was defeated by Norwell, Mentone, and Warsaw respectively. The girls gained coordination and the spirit of athletic competition.

The Eagles powered their way through the season with six wins, two losses, and two ties. Jerry Partin furnished the hitting force with a .372 average, followed by Tom Blackburn hitting .341, and Russ Swing with a .301 seasonal average. The team's scoring power was defended by the efforts of Brad Byrd pitching, Huey Hazen and Jerry Partin controlling the infield, and Dan Ferguson in the outfield. The highlight of the 1968 season was winning the ACAC victory at Leo. The Eagles owed their victory to their never die attitude and their coach, Mr. Delagrange.

Not for Ourselves, But for All

Twelve years ago 79 scared eager faces were seen in the first grade rooms at the Churubusco Elementary School. Many lasting friendships were formed during the recess periods. Lunch boxes and big yellow pencils were the symbols of daily school life. As the years passed, the symbols changed to such things as basketballs, National Honor Society pins, and band award jackets. Life became more complicated when the students entered junior high; they had to adjust to five-minute breaks and shorter lunch hours. The subjects were also more challenging. But these experiences prepared them for the bright new world of high school.

The halls of C.H.S. were filled with almost a hundred freshmen in 1965. The sophomore year brought the start of money making projects with the card sales. Class sweaters in the colors of burgundy and white were ordered and worn with pride by the class. More responsibilities were put upon their shoulders during the junior year. Store managers Debbie Allman, Pepper Herron, Bonnie Gaff, Dallard Tackett and Earl Brendel ran the junior store during the noon hour and at the basketball games. Candy was sold as a class project. The money obtained was largely used for the prom. Every junior who later sat at the tables in the magic atmosphere could remember the countless hours of preparation that had gone into making "Tender is the Night" the highlight of the year for the upperclassmen.

Senior year brought a flurry of activities that kept everyone so busy they wondered where the year had gone. Finally came the trip, and the 12 years of work seemed worth it. Baccalaureate, awards day, and commencement came all too suddenly for some. Smiles and tears revealed the mixed emotions. As the class of '69 formed the friendship circle, the symbols changed once more. The tassel was a reminder of memories of yesteryear. The future beckoned them to make their dreams a reality and to fulfill their motto, "Not for ourselves, but for all."
