💌 A Note from the Principal

Dear Families,

This week, our staff participated in professional learning focused on executive functioning skills, which play an important role in how students learn, manage their emotions, and navigate everyday challenges. These skills include staying organized, following multi-step directions, managing time, controlling impulses, and adapting when things don't go as planned.

Executive functioning skills develop over time, and students often need different levels of support as they grow. Through consistent routines, modeling, and opportunities to practice independence and problem-solving, we can help students build confidence and become more successful learners. We look forward to incorporating these strategies into our daily work with students!

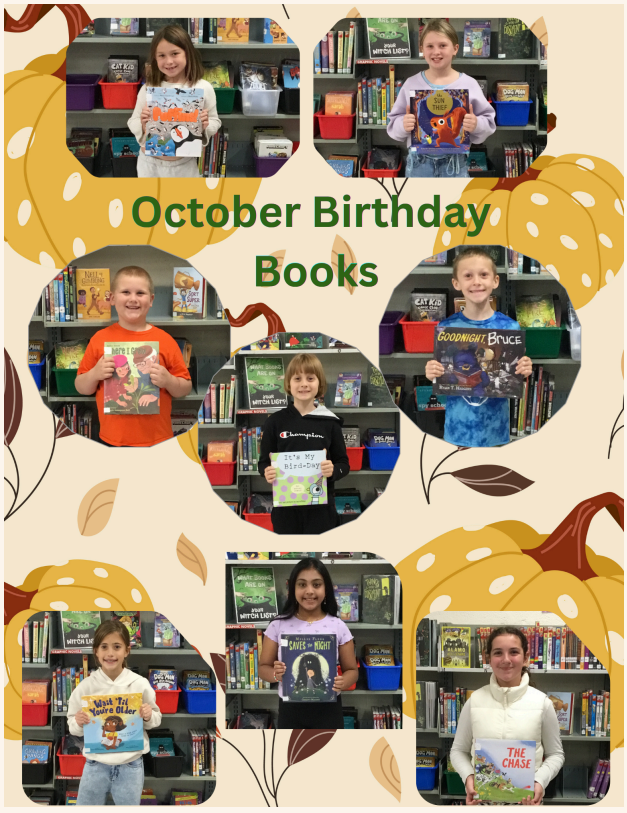

Best,

Danielle Radke
