Duxbury Public Schools is pleased to announce the appointment of Dr. Erin Wiesehahn as the district's next Assistant Superintendent. In this role, Wiesehahn will be responsible for curriculum leadership, data-driven instructional decision-making, personnel evaluation and team management, and regulatory and legal compliance. Wiesehahn's extensive experience and demonstrated leadership in our district make her exceptionally well-suited to serve in this critical leadership position.

Dr. Wiesehahn has served as Principal of Chandler Elementary School for the past 11 years, leading a staff of more than 110 teachers and support personnel and fostering a culture of academic excellence, collaboration, and student-centered learning. She began her career in Duxbury as an elementary teacher and, before becoming principal, was the PK-5 Elementary Curriculum Supervisor, overseeing all content areas.

"Dr. Wiesehahn's experience, commitment to students and staff, and longstanding dedication to Duxbury Public Schools make her an outstanding choice for this position," said Superintendent of Schools Dr. Danielle Klingaman. "Her leadership has positively impacted generations of students, educators, and families, and I am confident she will continue to advance the district's mission and strategic priorities as Assistant Superintendent."

"I am incredibly grateful for the opportunity to serve the Duxbury Public Schools community in this new role," said Wiesehahn. "I am excited to collaborate with administrators and educators across all four schools to support teaching and learning, and I look forward to building on the district's strong foundation as we continue to provide meaningful opportunities for all students."

Wiesehahn earned her Bachelor of Arts in English Literature and Elementary Education and a Master's Degree in Elementary Education from the University of Rhode Island, a Certificate of Advanced Graduate Studies in Educational Leadership from Bridgewater State University, and a Doctorate of Education in Innovative Teaching and Learning from Northeastern University. She lives in Duxbury with her family and, in her free time, enjoys reading and spending time at the beach.
