

Chad Sexton began his career as a teacher and athletic director and has more than 20 years in education. He holds a School Administrator Certificate with Central Office Endorsement from the Michigan Department of Education, a Master's degree from Central Michigan University, and is completing his Educational Specialist (Ed.S.) degree at Western Michigan University. Over his career he has built strong, trusting relationships with students, school boards, staff, families, and the community. He is a leader who collaborates, is transparent, and seeks continuous improvement.

Chad's leadership includes instruction, finance, strategic planning, facilities, transportation, and human resources. As Director of Transportation Services at Genesee Intermediate School District, he leads 250 staff and manages a $15.4 million budget. Using data to improve student behavior and readiness to learn, he led system improvements that reduced average countywide ride times for special education students by 17% in 2025, supporting classroom environments and academic achievement.
