The student desiring to improve his/her grade needs to speak with his/her teacher first. After the teacher has decided that Intersession is an option the student needs to get a form from his/her teacher.

"What happens after the student completes the work?"
When the student is done with the work the tutors make notes on the back of the form then attach the completed assignments. The packet is then put into the teacher's mailbox to be graded when he/she returns from break. Students also have the opportunity to turn in work electronically through their teacher's Google Classroom if that option is available in the class. If the student has met the standards set for the assignments the teacher would then fill out a form indicating the change (if any) in the grade.
