In Like a Lamb, Out Like a Dragon

March arrived like a lamb this year with calm skies and sunshine. But we all know the old saying. March comes in like a lamb and goes out like a lion. Around here, that lion often carries sleet, wind advisories, a possible 6-10 inches of snow over the weekend, and one more reminder that Minnesota winter does not like to wrap up.

The winter season also brings one of the toughest calls a superintendent makes: the snow day decision. My alarm rings early. The texts from neighboring districts start rolling in about 4 a.m., sharing information about road conditions and debriefing about the National Weather Service updates and radar. Coffee helps, but not that much. Safety drives every decision.

Still, when the weather is messy at 4:00 a.m., the stress hits. Uffda. That word fits perfectly. No one wants to disrupt family plans, school schedules, or learning time. At the same time, buses full of students must travel safely across miles of rural roads. That responsibility sits front and center. Thank you for your patience when those decisions come. Our goal stays simple: safe students and clear communication.

Inside our schools, March brings great energy to our buildings. Spring activities are ramping up. Classrooms are buzzing with projects, reading, and hands-on learning. Teachers are pushing students to finish the quarter strong. Our dedicated students rise to the challenge. I see hard work across every building. Our staff is also preparing for spring events, concerts, competitions, the Kindergarten Circus, and field day. These moments shape memories students carry for years. They also show the strength of our community. Families show up. Volunteers step in. And our students shine.

Families play a huge role in that success. Thank you for supporting homework, encouraging attendance, and staying connected with our teachers and staff. That partnership matters more than you know.
So enjoy the calm days when they come. Keep the winter gear handy just in case that March lion roars again. Spring sits just around the corner.

- Superintendent Stolp

Are You Smarter than a 5th Grader?

Fifth graders recently investigated the effects of different design elements when creating a glider. After an intro lesson on aerodynamics, students had the opportunity to engineer and test out their own designs. The creativity, enthusiasm, and smiles were priceless!
