

THE REVERBERATIONS OF OUR YEAR

FOOD PANTRY

BY: BRENLEE ARMOR

Everyday the students here are given access to various snacks and drinks for free. This food comes from the food pantry run here at our school. The pantry is primarily handled by Mrs. Mathias' success and wellness class. The students are in charge of bringing in all the food when it is delivered and organizing the room it was stored in. Not only that, the students stock a cart located in the cafeteria that all students have access to, and by request they will also deliver the food to various teachers' classrooms for them to keep for their students. Some of the teachers that keep their rooms full of these snacks are, Mrs. Lee, Mrs. Greco, Mrs. Everhart, and many others. The food in the pantry includes but is not limited to, peanut butter crackers, juiceboxes, ramen, mac and cheese cups, and pudding cups. On some occasions students will be given bags containing food from the pantry that they can take home to their families. This wide variety of snacks and other foods means that there is something for everyone and no students should have to worry about going hungry at school or at home.

BASKETBALL Q AND A

BY: CLOE MELLIE

1. What has been the highlight of your season so far?

Zach: When our team went to watch Coach Carter at the Strand.

Kiera: Getting to hype each other up while beating John Adams.

Alanis: When our team won the first game by about 16 points!

1. How would you describe your team's chemistry this year?

Zach: We all play very well together; most of us have been playing together since junior high basketball.

Kiera: We all work together very well, and we understand each other's strengths and weaknesses to play to the best of our ability and have fun.

Alanis: Everyone gets along great, and we always have fun together at practice.

1. How do you handle tough losses or setbacks as a group?

Zach: Worry about the next practice or game and improve on the little things as the season goes along.

Kiera: We don't let it bring us down for our next game; we just keep pushing and let those losses push us to do better.

Alanis: We try harder at practices and work on improving our mistakes."

Blank Page

All I can do is stare.

Stare at the blank page that I would usually have full of words by now.

I can't think, no matter how hard I try.

Breaks don't help.

I try to keep myself busy to feel somewhat normal.

But whenever I'm not busy, all I can think about is that blank page.
