CREATIVE CLASSROOM

WINNER

BY: QUINCY TAYLOR

Q: Where did you hear about this Creative Classroom?

A: : I was very much surprised to hear I was one of the winners of the Creative Classroom contest this year. If you watched the news video you could probably tell that I had no idea I would be chosen.

Q: How were you feeling when you heard you won the Creative Classroom?

A: I had to take a minute to process what was happening! I heard I won the contest as the news reporter was walking into my classroom carrying an oversized check along with a camera crew and Mr. Clark. I entered the contest assuming I would not win, so it wasn't even on my radar.

Q: Did you do anything with the money yet?

A: I haven't spent it yet, but I've been getting some ideas together as far as which books I'd like to purchase. My plan is to order new sets of books to have book clubs with this Spring.

Q: If you did do anything with the money, how did your students like it?

A: I hope my students will help me choose the books to purchase, so hopefully they will like it! Having their feedback and input is something that's important to me.

SENIOR VALENTINE Q AND A

BY: NIKKI FREET

Interviewee: Cameron Withrow

Q: If you were a candy heart, what would your conversation message say?

A: Be Kind

Q: How would you describe your perfect love story in one sentence?

A: High school sweethearts growing old together and creating a big family.

Q: What was the Valentine's Day box you made? And why did you decide on that theme?

A: I made a Pac-Man machine. I decided on this theme because it was my favorite childhood game to play growing up.

Interviewee: Ava Coen

Q: If you were a candy heart, what would your conversation message say?

A: You're sweet.

Q: How would you describe your perfect love story in one sentence?

A: Meeting the person when you are younger and growing old with them.

Q: What was the Valentine's Day box you made? And why did you decide on that theme?

A: My Valentine's Day box was Bluey. I made a Bluey Valentine's Day box because my cousins love Bluey, and I was planning on giving it to them.
