Exemption Status

The Fair Labor Standards Act (FLSA) requires employers to classify positions as exempt or non-exempt. Positions that are exempt according to FLSA meet criteria such as a minimum salary amount and the performance of specific job duties. Positions that do not meet these criteria are classified as non-exempt and the laws require that these positions are paid a minimum wage and compensated for all time worked. See Policy 7030 for additional details.

Exempt	Positions designated under this category are exempt from the minimum wage and overtime pay requirements set out in the FLSA. The defined workday for exempt positions will be designated in a contract or memo and supervisors may assign responsibilities or schedule meetings involving time outside designated contract hours.
Non-Exempt	Positions designated under this category are non-exempt from the minimum wage and overtime pay requirements set out in the FLSA. The defined workday for non-exempt positions will be designated in an assignment letter and the supervisors will establish lunch and break times in accordance with state and federal laws or other applicable policies, regulations or procedures. The supervisor may assign responsibilities or schedule meetings in excess of an employee's defined work hours, but the employee must be compensated for all time worked and those who work greater than 40 hours in the defined work week will be compensated in accordance with the FLSA.
