OF THE GROWL STAFF

Tiara Cappello
My time at THS has been quite the experience, especially with Covid 19 taking over everyone's lives. My senior year wasn't at all what I expected, but I chose to make the best out of it. I became a captain of the varsity cheerleading squad, achieved several certifications in culinary arts and digital design, kept a 4.0 GPA, and worked hard as an editor for the school yearbook. I've been really thinking back to what I have learned and gained the past four years, and I believe that my #1 tip is to have a positive mindset in everything that you do, and to have confidence.
When I started high school, I was honestly terrified of everything and everyone. It probably wasn't until my sophomore year or so that I actually started being myself around others, attended more school events, and cared less about what others thought of me. And since then, I have made so many friends and I'm just happy that I included myself in the "high school experience". So what I'm just trying to say is don't let overthinking and anxiety get the best of you, you deserve to have a fun time in high school. High school goes by so fast, so please enjoy it while you can and thrive!!

From my experience, the best advice I could offer is to get started early and try your best.
Even when it gets tough, do not give up. When the storm passes, the calm appears.
Volunteer as much as you can (for Bright Futures Scholarships) so you're not stressed during your senior year.
Know what a four year plan is, and get started on harder credits.
You don't have to know what you want to do in life, you just have to want to be successful.

Lillian Sharp
The biggest things I can recommend to be successful in high school involve starting strong, and keeping that momentum until the end. First impressions don't just matter for other people you meet, if you start strong, most of the time you can impress yourself enough to keep motivated, and you will be much more likely to succeed in the end. Keeping your grades high from the start is easier than bringing up a failing grade at the last minute. Start on Bright Futures or honor society hours early, senior year sneaks up on you fast, and it won't feel good to have such a big time investment go to waste. And most importantly, make sure you get all the credits you need to graduate ASAP, and have a plan to get the ones you are missing, finding out that you can't walk the stage less than a month before graduation really, really sucks.
Next, do not be afraid of taking Honors, Advanced Placement, or Dual Enrollment classes. You will never know how well you do in them until you try, and even if you don't get an A, high level classes are weighted higher than regular ones, so it can still help out your GPA a lot.

My final advice is to get involved. Join an after school club, or if you can't, enroll in a class that does club-like activities, like Yearbook or TV Production. Those kinds of things look really good on resumes and college applications, not to mention that they are all tons of fun.

Elijah Leucht

Dylan Benson
My tip to anyone who reads this is to make sure you enjoy what you are doing. There will be times where you'll be forced to take classes you won't like or have projects that aren't fun, but that's all part of pushing yourself to grow.
My advice to avoid inevitable burnout is to get involved and try everything out at least once. Find something that you can always look forward to after the hard parts are over. In those things you'll make friends and build connections. You'll find a support group of people who care about you. If you learn that you aren't enjoying what you're doing, talk to someone!
Don't be afraid to ask for help and don't be afraid to seek change. Nothing will get better if you don't make any changes and if you never give yourself the chance to rest, you won't have the motivation to keep moving forward.

Ashlyn Guppenberger
Looking back at my past four years of high school my biggest regret was not getting involved sooner. My advice is to get involved as soon as you can. Join a club or organization like Band, Yearbook, or even Student Government and there are so many that high school has to offer. By getting involved you develop new friendships and learn new things that will help you out in the long run. Another great thing to do is start off strong and confident with yourself. Don't just sit back and watch your high school experience pass you by, instead actually take the initiative to do great. I was always told, "Make your high school experience the way you want to make it, never do it for someone else but yourself."
By moving forward and continuing on your path to success never forget to have fun and go to school events and create your own Terrier Experience. I regret not getting out there and doing more but once I finally did it's been an adventure that you can only enjoy once in your life. Don't get caught up in drama and things that are going to push you back, instead keep your head high and look at things on the bright side and stay positive and you'll be on the road for success. There's so much that you can do and it never hurts to ask someone, either it's a teacher, counselor or another peer; learn new things and go for it. Never be afraid to do the impossible, because nothing is impossible until you try.

Gone, but not forgotten..... she was a dedicated, kind and talented artist and educator. During her time at Titusville High School she held the positions of Art teacher, Assistant Athletic Director, basketball coach, and beloved friend and colleague. She will be missed dearly.

Best Buddies Club celebrates Earth Day & recognizes innocent lives lost due to intolerance

■ One of the victims in a recent shooting, Teri Leiker, was a best buddies member for 11 years.

On Apr. 23 Best Buddies members met during third block for their activity which included planting a tree on our campus.

The purpose of the tree planting ceremony was to honor the lives lost in recent events: the Atlanta shooting, the Boulder, Colorado shooting, the pandemic, and so many more. They will be placing a plaque at the bottom of the tree that reads, "In loving memory of the innocent lives lost to violence and intolerance. Diversity in life is assured, but inclusion is crucial."

During the month of May they have two more big activities planned: the Friendship Walk and their end of the year party.

The current President Olivia Brown and Vice President Adriauna Cooper shared some more information about the club:

What position if any do you hold in the club?

COOPER: Currently vice president. My previous positions were social media coordinator and secretary.

BROWN: President of Best Buddies.

How often does your club meet?

COOPER: We hold mandatory meetings once a month.

BROWN: We try to have events at least once a month.

What would you say to someone to encourage them to join?

COOPER: I would explain how much of a positive space our club is due to the building of friendship and inclusion. Our club is a great way to meet new people.

BROWN: I would tell them about my experience and how much it has impacted my life. This club has created friendships for me and brought a positive space not only to me but all those around me.

How long have you been a member of this club?

COOPER: I have been a member since my freshman year and I am a senior now.

BROWN: I have been a part of this club for four years.

What have been your top 3 favorite activities that you have participated in with this club?

COOPER: I have participated in the Friendship Ball, our Autism Awareness Day celebration, and the Friendship Walk. The Friendship Ball is a prom that is held at UCF for all of the Best Buddies chapters in central Florida. We all meet at school and take a bus to Orlando.

We always get dinner before to give our buddies the true prom experience. Our Autism Awareness Day celebration was held during lunch this year and we had a great turnout. We had many games, prizes and music. Finally, the walk is another way to meet people who are in Best Buddies, but in a different chapter. It is so much fun to meet new people and share ideas to better our chapters.

BROWN: Friendship Ball because it gives us a chance to all dress up, get dinner together, and party all night long with our buddies and everyone creates such amazing memories.

Friendsgiving because we all get to eat dishes we've brought together and buddies will invite their family so it gives us a chance for them to meet us and see what our club is all about.

End of the Year Party because we all get to hang out and have fun one more time before the school year is over and we get to celebrate the seniors that will soon be leaving us.

Who should students contact if they want to join?

BROWN & COOPER: Contact Mrs. Coachman if you are interested! At the beginning of each school year we advertise our club during lunches so students can sign up.
