WOODLAND FEEDER PATTERN INFORMATION FOR 2027-28

Beginning with the 2027-28 school year, Fayetteville Public Schools will adjust to new feeder patterns. A feeder pattern is the grouping of elementary schools that will attend the same middle school and junior high school. The current feeder patterns split some elementary schools, sending part of their students to one middle school and the remainder to another middle school. It also splits some middle schools when the students move up to junior high, sending some to one junior high and the remainder to another. However, the new 2027-28 feeder pattern keeps all of the students from an elementary school together as they transition to middle school and junior high without splitting them.

Beginning next school year, August of 2027, all students living in the Asbell, Butterfield, and Vandergriff zones will attend Woodland Junior High School. Students living in the Root zone, will be reassigned to Ramay Junior High.

If your 7th grade student who currently attends Woodland lives in the Root zone, that student will be zoned to attend Ramay Jr. High School next year. However, the district is offering a one-year-only grandfather provision to allow your student to remain at Woodland for the 2027-28 school year, as long as you provide transportation to and from school. A survey regarding the grandfather option was emailed on Monday, Oct. 19th, to those of you residing within the Root zone.

If you currently reside in the Asbell, Butterfield, and Vandergriff zones, Woodland will remain your junior high.

Parents of students who are not eligible for the grandfather provision can still request an in-district transfer through the district's standard process.
