VOL. 57 ISS. 2 | GO, DOGIES! | OCTOBER, 2026

Kachow!, FHS's modern band, performs Going the Distance by Cake at the fall music concert on Tuesday, October 29. Junior high and high school bands and choirs shared their talents throughout the evening with an auditorium full of supporters.

Notable Music News

By Mairi King

The Forsyth Music Department has made a few changes this year. The junior high (with 35 students) and high school band (with 8 students) are now directed by elementary school music teacher Mrs. Beth Hall. The junior high and high school choirs and modern band are directed by Mrs. Janet Morgenstern, who is new to Forsyth but brings years of music teaching experience.

While Mrs. Morgenstern and the choirs have several goals, they plan to focus mainly on fundamental skills, sight-reading, and becoming more independent. The junior high choir spends class time practicing good tone.

The high school choir works each day to increase its confidence and spends much of its time practicing sight-reading skills in preparation for the District Music Festival in the spring.

Mrs. Hall's main goal for the junior high band students is to produce more leaders. She even started leadership committees where the students honor their classmates for showing good leadership skills.

Mrs. Hall would like the high school band students to expand and grow musically. They work toward this goal by practicing technical skills such as scales and articulation. She would also like to see more students involved in festivals.

JH MAST-Tests, Gains Data

Forsyth 7th graders fuel their brains as they take their ELA MAST test. Snacks were generously donated throughout the week for test-takers by the PTSA.

By Mrs. Amber Icopini, Purple Press Advisor

From Monday, October 19, to Thursday, October 22, the Forsyth Junior High took its first round of Montana Aligned to Standards Through-Year (MAST) tests in math and ELA.

These tests are required by the state and administered to students in grades 3-8 during three testing windows that occur throughout the school year.

More than just a standardized test, MAST tests allow teachers to test students' understanding of content that they have recently learned, providing timely, actionable data for teachers and families to use during the school year.

This information was shared almost immediately with parents, as it was provided with report cards at parent/teacher conferences on October 26 and 28.

The annual Walk to School Day was on Wednesday, October 7. FCCLA members met the elementary school kids and parents at the courthouse, and together, they walked to the elementary school.

Walk to School Day is a national community service project that FCCLA participates in to promote traffic safety and help the grade school students understand traffic signs.

Walk to School Day also helps bring the community together by inviting parents and teachers to join the march.

The elementary kids enjoy spending time with the high school students and vice versa. According to FCCLA advisor Ms. Jesse Pauley, this is a day everyone always seem to remember. Ms. Pauley loves seeing her students out in the community, making a difference.

On Tuesday, October 13, FCCLA traveled to Huntley Project for districts. The meeting was run by Harper Icopini, the outgoing district president, while members Taylor Melia, Morgan Icopini, Malia Neuman, and Sheldon Reilly ran for this year's offices.

Sheldon was voted as district parliamentarian; Morgan, public relations coordinator; and Taylor, vice president.

During the elections, each candidate was asked different questions, and all FCCLAers voted for their candidate of choice afterward. One question was a comparison question, such as comparing unlike items, such as a car and themselves.

ARTS AND CULTURE

Mrs. Morgenstern and Ms. Hall would both like to see improvements within the music department. Mrs. Morgenstern is currently working to get better equipment for the choirs to use, and the Booster Club has already approved her request for six new microphones. Additionally, she would like to introduce her students to musical scholarships.

Mrs. Hall hopes to see all of her students grow both musically and as individuals. She plans to make this happen by keeping a structured classroom and holding her students to high standards. Mrs. Hall hopes to produce leaders, musicians, and good citizens.

Mrs. Hall and Mrs. Morgenstern would like to encourage more students to join a music group. They believe music increases active listening skills, helps kids learn to concentrate, and gives students a sense of accomplishment. Mrs. Hall also says music is a good way to make social connections, express creativity, and more importantly, build teamwork skills; "Nobody sits the bench in a band!"she adds.

The junior high and high school choirs perform a This Is Halloween medley from Tim Burton's Nightmare Before Christmas at the Fall Concert.

Speech and Drama: A Triple Threat

By Maddison Ratcliff

The speech and drama team started its season this month. Led by head coach Mrs. Tina Zent and assistant coach Ms. Tia Seleg, the team will attend its first event on November 6 in Roundup and is actively rehearsing for this date.

This year's Dogie Speech and Drama team is made up of four seniors, four juniors, and four eighth graders. The speech section of the club is led by team captain Ryleigh Seleg. She, Emma Hall, and Abigayle Fay all participate in Humorous Interpretation; Nic McDanold represents the Dogies in Memorized Public Address; Livia Francisco performs in both Informative and Spontaneous Oral Interpretation; and Maggie Propp is set to give an Informative Speech.

The drama section of the team is composed of Mime, Abigail Morris; Humorous Duo, Brody Kennedy and Teegan Baus; and Classical Theater performers, Brooklyn O'Malley and Bailey Prodruchny.

Johanna McDanold represents FHS in Lincoln-Douglas Debate.

The Dogies will spend the season refining their pieces in preparation for an appearance at the state competition in Choteau on January 29-30.

Forsyth High School's FFA chapter, which is advised by ag teacher Ms. Bavaro, traveled to MetraPark in Billings on October 12 and 13 to compete in Livestock Judging, Vet Science, Meat Judging, and Horse Judging contests at the Northern International Livestock Exposition (NILE).

NILE contestants left Forsyth on Monday, October 12, for the Livestock Judging and Vet Science contests. The Dogie Livestock Judging team placed 17th out of 49 teams. Livestock judges were Colter Nelson (placed 42nd out of 174 contestants), Jesse Stevens, Samantha Anderson, Stetson Robertson, Kellen Hein, Henry Jones, and Layne Lawrence. The Vet Science team, composed of Shaylee Turner, Rylan Friez, Samantha Anderson, and Addisyn Dalakow, placed 29th.

Then, on Tuesday, October 13, the Dogies returned to the NILE, participating in Meat Judging and Horse Judging. The Meat Judging team ranked 9th and was made up of Colter Nelson (placed 26th out of 81 contestants), Jesse Stevens, Kellen Hein, Henry Jones, Layne Lawrence, and Rylan Friez. FHS's Horse Judging team placed 9th out of 29 teams. Members included Shaylee Turner (placed 14th out of 107 contestants), Samantha Anderson, Ekko Hulford, Addisyn Dalakow, and Madilyn Anderson.

While the NILE contestants are not Forsyth's entire FFA chapter, those who competed in the NILE are members of the 7th, 8th, and 9th grade classes. Despite their youth, Bavaro hopes that this year's judging teams will advance to state in Great Falls in March, noting that this young team is working to establish a good foundation that will help not just advance the team to state but also build a strong chapter in all areas.

> "FFA opens so many doors, and there are lots of different opportunities for everyone to be a part of and try. You will be able to travel to and see places you've never seen before, and the leadership opportunities that come from FFA prepare you for future careers in ways you could never imagine."

Junior High Basketball: Growth, Discipline, Passion

By: Mairi King

This year's junior high basketball season started on October 5, and the A teams will end their seasons with a conference tournament on November 21.

At the beginning of the season, each team went over a few goals, both as a team and individually. The boys set goals focusing mainly on improving and becoming more aggressive defensively. They set a goal to get ten deflections each game. To work towards this goal, the boys are practicing ball pressure and getting down into a good defensive stance.

The girls'main goal is to fully understand the mechanics of basketball and get more comfortable on the court. In practice, the girls are also working on their stamina to prevent them from tiring early in the game. Each day brings new challenges, and these girls are preparing for anything.

Head coach for the boys, Coach Jill Lawrence, would like to see the team leave the season with a stronger understanding and love for the game.

She believes that will not only help the basketball program, but also help the boys grow through their high school years. Coach Steve Roll, the girls' head coach, hopes his players will see that the same teamwork, encouragement, and hard work that wins games will also apply to their lives for years to come.

After two weeks of play, the teams tout the following win-loss records: Boys A, 4-0; Boys B, 2-2; Girls A, 1-3; Girls B, 2-2.

The coaches would like people to know that there are home games on November 6 & 7, and they would like to see everyone there.

By Nola Potts

The Forsyth junior high wrestling season started practice on October 12 with a team that is working to build strength and unity.

In its first year of a co-op with Hysham, the team consists of 5 boys and 1 girl and in its first week of competition, represented the Dogies well at Shepherd's meet with Elise Steiger, Abel Metcalf, and Evan Steiger winning their bracket 3-0, MJ Fay and Paxton Roeslein going 2-1, and Bryson Lucas finishing 1-2.

Over the course of the 6-week season, the wrestling team will travel to many schools, including Miles City, Huntley Project, Red Lodge, Hardin, Lockwood, and Laurel.

The junior high season will come to an end around Thanksgiving (just in time for some good eats), and wrestlers will have an additional chance to compete at middle school state in March during the AAU season.

This year's Dogie wrestlers are being coached by Ben Reilly and assisted by Camron Reilly. When asked why they coach wrestling, Coach Ben Reilly said that he wrestled in high school and in college and decided to give back by coaching wrestling, and Coach Camron Reilly said it is the sport he grew up loving; it requires hard work, discipline and having an open mindset and gives back in friendships and connections. Now that he can't participate in the sport, he hopes to continue to be a positive influence for the youth and wants to share wrestling with younger kids, so they know how much it can impact them and their futures.

Shellbie Counts Ahead

By Nola Potts

Shellbie Larsen is a senior who knows how to focus on school and have fun while doing it. As she gets further into her senior year, she muses about the past and future.

Favorite high school memory: Shellbie's favorite high school memory is freshman year homecoming because it was her first one, and it was before all the rules were enforced.

Favorite class: Shellbie loves math class because of all Ms. Killebrew's talks, which give Shellbie a good laugh, but also because whenever she needs help on anything–math–related or not–Ms. Killebrew is always willing to help.

What she will miss most: She will miss her high school friends and being with them all the time doing their random side-quests.

Her support system: Shellbie's parents are the ones who always comfort her and let her rant to them after bad games and practices and tell her it won't mean anything in five years.

Three words that describe Shellbie (according to Shellbie): Funny, dumb, and random. (Her friends would never call her the last two.)

An ideal life: To Shellbie, it is one where everyone is healthy, happy, and stress-free. It is a great job that allows her to retire early, be with family, and not worry about money.

After high school: She plans to pursue either a finance or accounting degree.

Fay's Faves, Future

By Maddison Ratcliff

Abigayle Fay, a caring and positive senior, reminisces about her high school career as she walks through her final year.

Difficulties: Abby's most difficult class is dual credit stats, as"It's a lot of online work."

Favorites: Her favorite class is modern band due to how much she"gets to goof around."

Memories: Speaking of goofing around, Abigayle's favorite memory from high school was during volleyball when someone hooked Mario Kart onto a classroom projector.

More on that College Core Class: The direct opposite of goofing around is her college core class, as it leaves little room for any other activities; however, this is also her greatest learning opportunity. The strict deadlines and need for quality work in little time help her to grow in her own writing.

The Future: Even with her growth in her college core class, Abby is undecided about where life will take her once high school is over. Abby will most certainly go to college; however, her future is still in the making.

Future Riches: Should Abby have an unlimited amount of money in the future, she will most likely spend it all on"cats."

Senior Abigayle Fay

Nic Nears Finishline

By Mairi King

Nicholas McDanold is making his way through his favorite and most easy-going year of high school: senior year.

Looking Back: He reflects on his sophomore year, which was his most difficult year. During that year, Nic had to learn to balance schoolwork and activities as well as his new job. He remembers falling behind in his classes at first but managing to catch up through hard work and determination.

On the Run: Nicholas runs long distance in track. His favorite memory from high school is making it to track divisionals when he was a sophomore. He is very proud of this accomplishment because track has been a big part of Nic's life. Nic will miss competing in track more than anything after high school.

Through All of This: Nic found a great support system in his dad, whether he was helping with track or homework.

After High School: Nic plans to enlist in the Air Force. He then plans to go to college to become an electrician in hopes of making a lot of money. If Nic had an unlimited amount of money he would buy lots of video games and move to an ice cap in Alaska.

Advice: Nicholas wants underclassmen to keep pushing themselves, whether it's in class or on the field. He says," Don't stop trying, no matter how hard it gets."
