Access Through Christ

~ Nancy Gavilanes

Because our loving Redeemer has reconciled us to His Father, we can pray freely to God: "Let us then approach God's throne of grace with confidence, so that we may receive mercy and find grace to help us in our time of need" (HEBREWS 4:16). What a privilege to have access to God's throne room as we talk to Him in prayer.

INSIGHT

Psalm 88 is an unusual song of lament. Lament psalms typically include a call for God's help, a specific complaint or reason for lamenting, and an expression of trust in God. . . . Psalm 88 includes a call for God's aid (vv. 1-2) and reasons for lament (vv.3-9, 15-18) but omits any expressions of trust in God. Instead, the psalmist asks accusatory questions (vv. 10-12, 14) and describes being completely alone and in excruciating pain (v. 18). That this psalm is part of inspired Scripture demonstrates that God welcomes complete honesty before Him when we're struggling. In our pain, we can be assured that He's there and He's listening.
